122D CONVERSION TO ANTI-AIRCRAFT UNIT IS APPROVED

Georgia Guard Infantry Regiment To Be Changed From 'Non-Essential' Status Under War Plans

STODDARD LEAVES TO ARRANGE SHIFT

Officers Okay Revision; Need for Coast Defense of Georgia Is Outlined.

Conversion of the 122d Infantry of the Georgia National Guard into a coast artillery anti-aircraft regiment appeared assured yesterday when officers of the regiment voted 26 to 4 in favor of the proposal of the War Department.

Adjutant General John E. Stoddard left last night for Washington to inform Major General Albert Blanding, chief of the militia bureau, of the approval of the officers and presumably to work out details of the conversion.

Alexander Approves.

General Stoddard said that the large majority of the regiment's officers, including the commanding officer, Colonel T. L. Alexander, had approved the conversion.

"The army general staff believes that under its modernized plan of national defense the 122d would be a 'non-essential unit' as an infantry regiment and that it would be of great value as an anti-aircraft regiment," General Stoddard said.

"The officers of the regiment have signified their approval and I have no doubt but that the change will be made in a short time."

Strength Increase.

The adjutant general explained that establishment of a coast artillery regiment in Georgia would increase greatly the strength of the national guard and would not interfere with the status of the officers of the 122d.

"The plans call for the transfer of all officers in their present rank," General Stoddard said. "No officer will lose rank or other rating under the plan. It is solely to make an essential unit out of one considered non-essential under the new defense program."

No Coast Defense.

War Department officials, in revealing the conversion movement, points out that Georgia has a long sea coast and no military unit of consequence to provide for its defense.

"It is generally accepted," one high ranking officer pointed out, "that the next war in which our country engages will be a war wherein we are attacked by a foreign power. The next war will be on American soil and we are looking first toward the defense of our coast. We consider an anti-aircraft regiment in Georgia vital because of the state's long coast line."

Glamorous still, Fritzi Scheff, idol of millions of a simpler, more tuneful and sentimental America, talked in Atlanta yesterday of changes which have come over the stage, and the American people, in the span of her career.

CHEST IS NEARING CAMPAIGN GOAL

$330,377 Total Leaves
Only 23 Per Cent To Be Raised to Fulfill Quotas

Only 23 per cent of the needed fund was lacking today as Community Chest volunteer workers went into final two days of the campaign, driving for the first complete success in many years.

The total subscribed leaped to $330,377 at the fourth report luncheon yesterday, and practically every division drew within striking distance of the goal.

Dr. Herman L. Turner, president of the Chest, who presided at the rally, asked every worker to complete the job by Friday at 12:30, when the formal campaign will be closed.

"We have made a grand start and are in a position to have a glorious ending," he said. "It is in our power to reach the goal by the closing date of the campaign for the first time in a decade."

The amount reported yesterday was $62,503, which continued the fast pace of the early part of the campaign.

The team of the Women's Central Division, led by Mrs. C. E. Harrison, became the fourth to pass its quota, bringing in $814 to reach 128 per cent of the amount set as its individual goal. This team is still at work.

Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta Red Cross chapter, was the principal speaker at the meeting, declaring that the Chest was an absolute necessity for the persons who were being served by the 32 member agencies.

Dr. Boland said his interest lay particularly in the health agencies and he paid tribute to the Tuberculosis Association for its work in helping control the disease.

"Even if this were the only agency, the money we are raising would be well spent," he said.

Girl, 10, Sends Father To Jail for 20 Years

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(UP)—A jury tonight convicted James K. Matter, 45, once wealthy engineer, on the testimony of his 10-year-old daughter and sentenced him to 20 years in prison for the slaying of his wife, Marguerite, 37.

Martha Jean Matter, 10, as the state's chief witness, testified her mother and father quarreled the night of the shooting and that she heard her mother say:

"Please don't shoot me, Jim."

She added quickly, however, that Mrs. Matter might have said, "Please don't shoot, Jim."

Toast of Broadway in a
More Leisurely Era
Comes to Atlanta.

By RALPH MCGILL.

A spot of light on the stage—Muted music, the sound of soft shoes on the girls of the chorus making a sibilant scuffling sound—and then, into the spot of light—Fritzi Scheff, smiling, hands out, her face radiant—

"Sweet summer breeze, whispering trees,
"Stars shining softly above—"

The house was always so very, very quiet then as the gallant little Fritzi gave herself to the song—the splendid little "Yennese with all the traditional 'gemuetlichkeit' of that nation, could hold a house. And when she finished:

"Tenderly pressed, close to your breast,
Kiss me, kiss me again, . . ."

That was when the applause broke. Everyone whistled that song. Everyone, bootblacks, waiters, messenger boys, bankers, housewives, girls and boys—Fritzi had them all whistling or humming it. She was the spirit of it.

Small Part Now.

Yesterday Fritzi was interviewed. She is here with the magnificent Tallulah Bankhead in "I Am Different." Fritzi has but a small part but the old-timers in the audience give her a great hand wherever she goes. She was jolly and gaily and "Kiss Me Again" a quarter of a century ago. Everyone knew Fritzi Scheff. She played for all the great managers. She sang in all the great shows of her day. She made three fortunes and lost them by investments. She has known glory and hard work. She was a great success with never a scandal on her name.

"Eet is not strange," she said, with a trace of the old accent. "Eet is all how you were brought up. It is so easy to have a scandal. So, very easy. It is not so easy, maybe, to live within one's walls but if one has been brought up so, then it can be a feast."

No Credit to Me.

"Eet is no credit to me. I always have been such a normal person. To me poise can mean a lot. It is nothing that I have been so. That was me."

"Fritzi," someone asked, "about the old songs—"

"They do not have time," she said, grabbing the cue quickly. "They do not have time. There is the same old romance in the people."

DEFENSE NEEDS OF ALL AMERICAS STUDIED IN U. S.

Increased Air Force Is Considered as First Step in Insuring Protection of Western Hemisphere.

ALL NATIONS AGREE ON MUTUAL SAFETY

President Says Continental Plan Envisages the Co-operation of All.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(P)—President Roosevelt said today he and his advisers were considering an increased air force as the first step to insure protection for the 20 American republics of this hemisphere and Canada.

The President told a press conference that defense studies embraced protection for the whole hemisphere rather than the United States alone. He added he did not anticipate any defection from complete solidarity in the defense move.

Withholding details of the cost of the new air program and the number of planes, the President declared that in view of the world events of the last few years and scientific advancement in waging war, the whole orientation of this country with regard to the North, Central and South American continent has had to be changed.

Definite Solidarity.

He said there is today a solidarity among the American republics and Canada more definite and unanimous than in the last 120 years since the Latin American republics struggled for independence.

These nations, the President declared, were unanimous in the belief that, as a continent, they and the United States must be prepared to outline continental solidarity as it was portrayed at the 1938 Buenos Aires peace conference.

As a step in that direction he said he was conferring to see what was necessary to maintain continental solidarity against any threat of aggression from any other continent.

In that study, which was pursued at a long conference at the White House yesterday with officials from the War, Treasury, Justice and WPA agencies, the President said the first thing realized was the fact that any possible attack from abroad has been brought much closer than 50 years ago—primarily because of aircraft.

Safety Far Too Low.

He said continental safety from attack today was far too low and that not only existing resources of the government would be brought into play, but new legislation would be sought.

The continental defense plan would be in co-operation with the other American republics and

They Direct Reign of Terror Against Jews

Here are the two men who stand at the helm, directing Germany's campaign of terrorism against the helpless Jewish minority. At left is Reichsfuehrer Hitler and at the right is Heinrich Himmler, chief of the awe-inspiring secret police and head of the elite "S.S." storm troops who yesterday threatened new reprisals if the United States continued to protest.

NO FUEL PROVIDED BY RELIEF FUNDS

Fulton's $30,000 Payment, $10,000 Short, To Force 25 Per Cent Cut.

A payment of $30,000 by Fulton county yesterday as its share for caring for the 7,700 unemployed for November—at least $10,000 short of "actual pressing needs"—will bar the purchase of a single pound of fuel and force a reduction of 25 per cent in relief previously provided those on the rolls.

William E. Mitchell, chairman of the Fulton County Board of Public Welfare, declared last night.

Mitchell's statement came as he ordered a blanket cut in all relief checks for the month and as he expressed the hope that "Fulton county commissioners realize the seriousness of the condition of the unemployed on relief rolls."

Paid Under Agreement.

The $30,000 was paid promptly yesterday under an agreement last week between members of the board and the county commission in which it was decided to assist in making the county's contribution for the month available at the earliest moment.

Failure of the commission to provide an additional $10,000 a month for November and December.

GEORGIA BAPTISTS DENOUNCE NAZIS

Convention Calls on Secretary Hull To Protest Treatment of Jews.

By DR. LOUIE D. NEWTON.

A resolution calling upon Secretary of State Cordell Hull to "take urgent measures" in regard to the treatment of Jews in Germany was adopted unanimously yesterday by approximately 1,000 delegates to the Georgia Baptist convention, in the first day of a two-day meeting at the First Baptist church.

"The Georgia Baptist convention, representing a membership of 481,000," the resolution said, "has heard with surprise and indignation of the intolerant, brutal and inhuman treatment which is being accorded Jews in Germany today."

Revert to Darkest Hours.

"Such treatment is denial of the ideals of decency, of justice and of Christianity. It has no place in our modern civilization. To permit it to continue is to revert to the darkest hours in the history of humanity."

"We therefore, as a convention, respectfully petition the secretary of state of the United States to take urgent measures to voice the earnest protest of the American people against the atrocities."

Good Year for Church.

Increased gifts to the missionary, educational and benevolent work of the denomination, coupled with the largest number of baptisms in many years, gave the convention a note of enthusiasm as it faced the task of adopting its program of 1939.

Dr. Chamlee unanimously was re-elected president of the convention. Dr. Chamlee has served for the last two years as the convention's president. He was president of Bessie Tift College until last June, when he resigned to devote his entire time to the general work of the denomination, without salary.

The Rev. E. M. Altman, Atlanta; the Rev. L. M. Polhill, Americus; Dr. T. B. Rice, Greensboro, and the Rev. T. Barron Gibson, Valdosta, were elected vice presidents of the convention, to serve one year.

The Rev. Spencer B. King, Blakely, was re-elected treasurer.

Dr. B. D. Ragsdale, of Macon, was re-elected secretary of the convention, which makes the 44th

'Scarcely Believe It's 20th Century,' President Protests

Furious Germans Warn They Will Intensify Campaign If America Continues To Protest.

WREST $800,000,000 FROM JEWS' HANDS

'We'll Take a Thousand Jewish Eyes for Each German's,' Paper Cries.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's elite "S. S." storm troop organization, angered by American indignation over the Reich's anti-Semitic drive today warned that German Jews will suffer further penalties if anti-Nazi agitation continues in the United States.

Economics Minister Walther Funk announced that $800,000,000 of Jewish wealth, or nearly one-third of the holdings of all German Jews, has been taken from them in the current drive to eliminate Jews from the Reich's economic life.

The nation's 700,000 Jews, he said, will be completely obliterated from the business world.

The controlled Nazi press loosed attacks on "the purposeful politicians of Washington" as United States Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson prepared to sail for home to report to President Roosevelt on Germany's new wave of measures against the Jews.

Wilson Says Goodbye.

Wilson, who leaves Berlin Wednesday night and sails from Le Havre, France, aboard the S. S. Manhattan Thursday night, visited the foreign office late today and bade farewell to Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Funk said the Jews will receive German bonds as "indemnity" for their business properties which have "passed into Aryan hands."

He said that, of a total Jewish wealth of 7,000,000,000 marks (about $2,800,000,000), 2,000,000,000 marks has passed into Aryan control.

Funk added it was "impossible to exclude Jews from the nation's political life and still allow them to continue activities in economic life. The measures taken thus far will permit complete exclusion of Jews from the business world."

Will Give Visas.

German authorities informed the American consulate that if the United States will give visas to Jews under arrest, they will be released from prisons and concentration camps and permitted to leave the Reich.

It was estimated that 50,000 Jews have been arrested throughout greater Germany in the last few days, nearly 8,000 of them in Berlin, and that many of the prisoners are influential and wealthy Jews held as hostages.

Among the "hostages," held pending Hitler's complete settlement of the Jewish question, are such men as Fritz Warburg, Hamburg banker and brother of the late Felix Warburg and Paul Moritz Warburg, American financiers.

"We shall use Jewish hostages systematically, no matter how shocking some people may find it," the newspaper "Das Schwarze Korps," official organ of the S. S. guards, announced.

"All Will Answer!"

"Woe to the Jews if another helper is paid or incited by them and raises his murderous hand against a German! Not one will answer for a murdered or wounded German, but all!"

The Jewish principle of "an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" will be elaborated upon, the storm troop organ said, and the Nazis will take a thousand eyes and a thousand teeth for every German eye or tooth.

'News From Germany Has Deeply Shocked Public Opinion in United States,' He Declares.

DIPLOMATIC BREAK THOUGHT IMMINENT

Chief Executive Discloses He Personally Causes Summons of Envoy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Imminence of a diplomatic break between the United States and Germany was believed strengthened today when President Roosevelt forcefully denounced Nazi persecution of the Jews and said that Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson had been ordered home from Berlin to give him a personal report.

Mr. Roosevelt departed from White House custom and allowed himself to be quoted directly.

Deeply Shocked.

"The news of the past few days from Germany," he said at his press conference, "has deeply shocked public opinion in the United States."

"Such news from any part of the world would inevitably produce a similar profound reaction among American people in every part of the nation."

"I myself could scarcely believe that such things could occur in a 20th century civilization."

F. D. R. Asked Return.

"With a view to gaining a first-hand picture of the situation in Germany, I asked the secretary of state to order our ambassador to Berlin to return at once for a report and consultation."

Recall of Wilson was announced by Secretary of State Hull yesterday, although he did not style it a "recall." He said that Wilson had been ordered home for a "report and consultation," and declined further comment.

High cabinet officials said privately, however, that it was doubtful that Wilson will return to Berlin. This would mean, in effect, that relations with Germany are in a state of suspension until such time as Wilson returns or a successor is appointed.

Mr. Roosevelt declined to elaborate his own statement saying tersely that it speaks for itself.

Asked if he had formally protested to the Reich government he said he had not as yet. This was interpreted as meaning there may be a protest.

He also described Wilson's re-

Purge of Vote Lists Gets Under Way

Procedure Is Detailed With Committee of Six Appointed To Perfect Plans for Undertaking.

Purge of Atlanta and Fulton county registration lists was launched yesterday as a joint enterprise of Fulton election managers and members of the Fulton board of registrars.

A special committee of 11 election managers designated a committee of six to perfect plans for co-operating with registrars and to submit the following purge suggestions made at the meeting:

1. Check of every name on the September 14 state primary, lists, but which was not voted, to ascertain whether the voter has died, has moved or is otherwise disqualified. As a voter casts his ballot, his name on the registration lists is stricken through. Thus the names of those who did not vote would be checked, simplifying the procedure.

2. Dispatch of a double post card to those who did not vote, asking the person to answer if he or she lives at the address on the registration list and, if not, that the person living there give the registrars and committee any information possible concerning the person.

Women Affected.

3. Check of all registration lists by election managers in each of the 65 Fulton county precincts. It was pointed out that most election managers are well known and are familiar with the voters in their districts and that this method might be extremely valuable.

4. Standardization of registration for women, requiring them to give their proper age, and to register under their married names with their maiden names carried on the registration blank in parenthesis.

5. Legislation to force all morticians to furnish registrars a complete record of the deaths of all adults monthly in order that the death list may be checked against registrations.

Press Huddleston, who last week was named chairman of a group of election managers to press the purge and to lead a campaign for a shorter and more simplified state ballot, was selected as permanent chairman of the organization meeting yesterday. William F. Brandt was designated as permanent secretary.

Those named on the special committee are: Huddleston, Joseph A. McCord, Brandt, Mrs. Arthur Hale, Eugene F. King and Charles W. Bernhardt.

Conferences will be sought with registrars and every co-operation will be offered. W. W. Gaines, chairman, and other members of the board of registrars, committee members said.

"Mr. Gaines has invited the public to help the board revise the lists, and we want to do our duty in this matter," Huddleston said after the meeting. "We are not critical about it, but we feel that we can help the registrars perform a real public service in this respect."

Marvin Roan, a member of the committee of election managers, urged the committee to take "early action to reduce the size of the state election ballot and to make it simple enough for an ordinary voter to understand it and vote intelligently."

Other members of the election managers' committee in addition to the sub-committee, which was designated as the registration purge group, are:

Roan, C. E. Presley, W. S. Boston, W. E. Harclerode and Mrs. T. A. Hadden.

Judge Wears the Pants in His Court, Metes Slacks-Wearer 5-Day Term

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Miss Helen Hulick, a kindergarten teacher who wears evening clothes in the evening and pants in the daytime, marched into Judge Arthur Guerin's court today, looked the judge squarely in the eye and dared him to make her take off her pants.

It was a showdown between Judge Guerin's campaign to keep ladies from wearing pants in courtrooms and Miss Hulick's equally determined crusade to defend a lady's right to wear what she likes where she likes. Miss Hulick lost.

"Young lady," said the judge. "You are in contempt of court. Five days."

Wins Release. Miss Hulick, 28 and quite pretty, had brought a lawyer with her and he obtained her release on her own recognizance until she could file a writ of habeas corpus. The writ is returnable Thursday.

It was her third clash with Judge Guerin in three weeks, and Miss Hulick grimly promised that it wouldn't be her last.

When Miss Hulick first appeared and seated her neatly turned chassis in the witness chair for preliminary hearing, Judge Guerin, in promptly adjourned court and told her to go home and get some clothes on.

Yesterday Miss Hulick appeared again for the trial—still wearing pants. Judge Guerin's face reddened, as she stepped toward the witness box.

"Stop!" he commanded. "The last time you appeared in my court," the judge said, "you were wearing pants. It was apparent that witnesses and prisoners alike were paying more attention to you than to the court."

"I think," Miss Hulick interrupted icily, "a judge should keep his personal aversions out of public courtrooms."

The judge nearly choked. Then, with what reserve he could command, he slowly said— "You have openly and flagrantly violated the court's wishes. You have a defiant look on your face. This court orders you to return tomorrow in appropriate costume. I will be prepared to go the full limit of the law to serve the decency of the court."

Miss Hulick returned today, not only with her pants, but with an attorney, and explained cuttingly that if her pants didn't bother her kindergarten pupils, the judge ought to be able to take them in stride.

ROPER SAYS EXPLOSION WAS OUTSIDE NAZI SHIP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Secretary Roper said today it was "apparent" that the explosion which damaged the German ship Vancouver in the Oakland estuary November 3 occurred outside of the vessel.

He said that because this conclusion indicated the investigation should be made by the Department of Justice, he was directing the Bureau of Marine Navigation inspection to suspend its inquiry pending investigations by justice agents.

Roper said the explosion caused plates in the side of the Vancouver to bend inward.

RANGE OF 36 TO 60 FORECAST FOR TODAY

Atlanta will enjoy more brisk fall weather today under clear, if slightly smoky skies, the weather bureau predicted last night. A hot fall sun, shining through the day, is expected to run temperatures from a low of 36 expected this morning, to 60 or more during the afternoon.

The fall weather, coming after an unseasonably warm week end, is the fringe of a cold wave that sent the thermometer to below zero at some northwestern points.

Candler field reported a minimum reading of 38 yesterday morning, giving the sections of the city had frosts. Yesterday's high was 68.

NO FUEL PROVIDED BY RELIEF FUNDS

ber forced the board to order the reduction in monthly relief services to about $2.29 per person, and to ban all coal purchases.

"The fact that the commission has performed its agreement to pay the November relief funds promptly gives us hope that the commission realizes the seriousness of the condition of the 7,700 persons already on our relief rolls and that some way will be found to make the supplementary $10,000 a month appropriation we asked for November and December," Mitchell said.

Appreciate Promptness. "We appreciate the promptness of the November payment. It will help us meet a real emergency. On the other hand, we have been blessed with another week of good weather in which there have been no unusual demands for fuel. When cold weather comes, we have no way of meeting it. We cannot write a single order for fuel with our present demands. Normally the relief rolls jump during the cold winter months. When this happens we will be even less able to meet our responsibility to those on our rolls—to those who could not work even if they could obtain jobs because they are unemployed."

"I hope some way can be found to prevent actual suffering which must naturally come if we are limited to the funds available. We cannot afford to fail in our duty to this class of relief. We must meet it squarely."

As Mitchell expressed the hope of a solution of the problem, J. A. Ragsdale, chairman of the Fulton county commission, said the county "simply has not got any additional money and will end the year with an $80,000 deficit."

Frank R. Fling, clerk of the county commission, who handled details of the $30,000 payment yesterday, asserted:

"We had to scrape the bottoms of the cash drawers in the offices of the tax collector, treasurer, sheriff and clerks of the superior and municipal courts to raise the money—but we finally got it."

GEORGIA CORN CROP FAR ABOVE AVERAGE

4,000,000 Bushel Gain Is Estimated by U. S. Statistician.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Georgia's 1938 corn crop was estimated at well above average, probably the largest since 1921, in a report issued today by D. L. Floyd, agricultural statistician for the United States Department of Agriculture.

Peanuts, tobacco, soybeans, sorghum syrup, pears and sweet potatoes, also were listed as showing substantial increases over last year, but Irish potatoes, cowpeas, apples, pecans and sugar cane are expected to show harvests smaller than in 1937.

Indicated corn production for Georgia, Floyd said, is 53,164,000 bushels, more than 4,000,000 bushels in excess of the 48,334,000 bushel harvest a year ago and far above the 38,453,000-bushel average for the 10-year period from 1927 to 1936.

Production of peanuts is estimated at 489,000,000 pounds, the largest crop on record, compared with 392,000,000 pounds in 1937 and 284,146,000 for the 1927-36 10-year period.

Hot dry weather in late summer damaged Georgia's pecan crop to some extent, Floyd said, cutting it to an estimated 8,122,000 pounds as compared with 8,400,000 pounds a year ago. The crop, however, will be in excess of the 6,670,000-pound average for the 10-year period of 1927-36.

Other products and the estimated 1938 crop includes: Soybeans, 84,000 bushels; cowpeas, 913,000 bushels; tobacco 91,990,000 pounds; sorghum syrup 976,000 gallons; sugar cane 4,655,000 gallons; Irish potatoes 1,000,000 bushels; apples 964,000 bushels; pears 404,000 bushels; cotton, 866,000 bales.

ple today. If they but had time for it, you would hear the old songs. The songs reflect the life of a people.

"In those days there were carriages and buggies and one could ride slowly and see the moon and the stars and hear the wind in the trees. Now one rides in a plane and listens to engines and watches the land below. Now, one rides in a car and must watch the road and other cars. There is no time to see the moon or stars or to live slowly. But," she said, shaking her head and laughing, "the old romance is there. We are the same people."

It was comforting to see Fritzi Scheff. She had on one of those cute little hats, some silver fox furs and a beautiful dress. Her eyes sparkled.

The Way to Live. "I live as if I had another 60 years," she said. "Of course, I haven't. But that's the way to live. After all, it is nice to be able to adapt one's self. I remember in 1930 a young man interviewed me in Washington."

"What do you think of all these suicides?" "Well, I told him, 'I do not understand it. If a man makes a mark up to 50 years, why should he not do it again? If I were to lose all I had I would take my nickel and ride to spend 50 cents as well as $500. Well, a year later I had lost everything I had and was doing just that. I did it all right."

"Times change. People ask me what I think of the young people who know so much more, and they should. They have more opportunities to learn. It starts me to see a five-year-old baby. They know as much as we used to know at 10 or 15. They've got more poise. I think it's fine."

Still think all this talk of morals and young people is so silly. It depends on how you are brought up. And it depends on themselves. Who is to say what is right and wrong. They may, if they have been brought up well, be better able to distinguish right and wrong when they meet it. But they themselves must decide.

Catch Up With Me. "I am afraid too few of them will have that soft sweetness and the thing which leisure can bring. But, then, it isn't a fast life and fast in a dirty way. It is fast with cars and planes and the business of living. But, then, Fritzi always has one foot ahead. The times have just caught up with me."

Very Much a Person. She is very much a person and her philosophy is a grand philosophy. It reminds one of the late Don Marquis' poem about Methusalem:

"The way for to live a thousand years, is to live, b'gosh," said he. Fritzi just goes on living, normally, with that fine poise, understanding and personality which made her a great person. Maybe the way to live is to have a philosophy—like Fritzi's."

Relief Model of New State Office Building

Mrs. Kathleen Hogan, hostess at the state capital, is shown above with relief model of the new $750,000 state office building for which a contract was let yesterday. The building will be on Mitchell street opposite the capitol.

PWA ALLOTS FUND FOR MENTAL UNITS

Rivers Says RFC Loan To Finance State's Share Is Thereby Assured.

The PWA earmarked $1,800,000 for Georgia yesterday and state officials accelerated plans to provide care for 6,000 to 8,000 patients in a new state hospital plant at Milledgeville which means assurance the RFC would lend an additional $2,200,000 for the same project, Governor Rivers said.

RFC lending was contingent upon the state obtaining the $1,800,000 to put up itself. Other contingencies included legislative establishment of a Hospital Authority and issuance of revenue bonds for retirement of the loan.

Since the original plan called for $7,500,000 and only $4,000,000 is assured, drafts will have to be revamped and reduced. For this reason and because of technicalities officials could not name the exact date work on the new construction will begin.

The new hospital for the insane will be constructed near Milledgeville, on a high tract, once the old Dubignon plantation. Construction will require approximately 18 months, engineers said, with 600 men starting work and 1,500 estimated working force by the end of the ninth month.

Five Buildings. The Milledgeville project includes construction and equipping five buildings. Four will house women. Each three-story unit will accommodate 600 patients. Engineers estimated the buildings will cost $686,000 each.

How much of the present plant will be modernized, or torn down, is problematical, officials said, but will be decided by the state. The program is completed.

Efforts to obtain the PWA grant for the eleemosynary expansion program started several months ago. Assurance that funds would be allocated Georgia came two weeks ago when a state delegation headed by the Governor went to Washington to push the appeal for aid.

Governor Rivers said allocation of $3,500,000 PWA money to build farm-to-market roads, virtually assured the Georgia delegation, is not expected to be made until congress meets and passes a new PWA allocation measure. The application is remaining on file.

Another phase of state building work forward here yesterday with award of the contract to build a state office building adjacent to the capitol. The job was given Mion Construction Company, of Atlanta, which bid $752,952.

The state had available for this building $768,000. Six stories high, it will be constructed of Georgia marble and granite. Work is to begin next week.

Canada, he added. Asked what would happen if there was not complete unanimity among the nations, Mr. Roosevelt said he did not anticipate any lack of it.

He said the question of changing the neutrality act was not involved, nor was a proposal to have a fleet of sufficient size to defend both coasts at the same time.

Asked to specify the dangers which have prompted the new defense scheme, the President suggested that his inquirer read the papers for the last five years.

Someone wanted to know if the Philippines figured in the picture and the President replied the American flag still flies over those islands in the Pacific.

MOSELEY SELECTED TO HEAD CAMPAIGN

Traffic Body To Seek Passage of Four-Point Program.

Major General George Van Horn Moseley, retired, was selected yesterday to lead the newly organized citizens' traffic committee in its campaign to save human lives within the city of Atlanta.

The general was unanimously chosen for the post as the board of directors met in a "council of war."

Mrs. W. L. Geleissen and George Winship were named vice presidents of the board, and Charlie Bishop, secretary. Ben Cates was elected to replace C. F. Palmer as a member of the board. L. C. Milner and Scott Allen were added to the group as new members. The traffic committee is composed of representatives of 108 Atlanta organizations.

One of the principal objectives of the committee will be to solicit the co-operation of Atlanta citizens in the drive to improve traffic conditions.

"We must have public opinion behind us," General Moseley emphasized. "When we have that, we can solve our problems."

Immediate objective will be to secure passage by city council of four improvements proposed at the first meeting of the traffic committee. They are:

1. Designation of at least two one-way streets, one going north and one going south.

2. Synchronization of traffic lights in the downtown area.

3. Elimination of double and angle parking.

4. Creation of a special traffic court.

In planning the crusade, General Moseley announced a special technical subcommittee would be appointed to make recommendations. There also will be a speakers' subcommittee, which will sponsor educational lectures before meetings throughout the city. In addition there will be legislative and enforcement subcommittees.

M. L. Thomas, representing the traffic bureau of the police department, pointed out there are numerous unnecessary stop lights and signs in various parts of the city.

One of the first jobs of the technical committee will be to make a survey of the city and determine which lights and signs should be eliminated.

It was decided that meetings of the board would be held at 4 o'clock every other Tuesday.

STATE-WIDE RALLY TO BE HELD TODAY. Plans to attack causes of fatal traffic accidents will be made at a rally at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Confederate Soldiers' Home, headquarters of the State Highway Patrol. Commander Phil Brewster, of the State Department of Public Safety, announced yesterday.

The meeting will be attended by Georgia enforcement officers and jurists, and will be climaxed by a banquet by Wiley Moore tonight. Guests will be visiting judges, sheriffs, police chiefs and state troopers.

Other honor guests at the meetings will be Atlanta newspaper publishers and members of their staffs. Chief Hornsby, Captain Malcom, Captain Neal Ellis and officers of the city police traffic bureau, as well as bureau managers of the Associated Press, United Press and International News Service.

The occasion has been named "Save a Life Rally." Major Brewster said, and will be an annual event.

"We hope to show the drivers of the state that the enforcement officers and judges who try traffic cases, are united in a determined effort to stop killings and injuries on our streets and highways," Brewster said. He believes that a systematic attack on the four principal causes of fatal accidents will probably result from the meeting.

Various boards and examining committees also will meet today to formulate reports to be submitted tomorrow at the opening session of the church body. A special meeting of the Widows and Orphans Aid Association has been called to meet tonight at Wesley Memorial church.

The seventy-second annual session of the conference will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow at Wesley Memorial church. Bishop Decell has announced his purpose to observe the sacrament of the Lord's Supper during the first hour of the meeting.

During the day ballots will be cast to elect nine clerical delegates and nine lay delegates to the unifying conference, scheduled to meet next April at Kansas City, Bishop Decell said. No member of the conference body is now a member of the unifying conference, and the delegation of 18 ministers and laymen will be an entirely new selection, it is said.

Presiding Elders.

Author-Teacher Will Speak on School Papers.

John E. Drewry, director of the Henry W. Grady School of Journalism at the University of Georgia, will speak to staff members of Atlanta junior and senior high school publications at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the library of O'Keefe Junior High school. His subject will be "The School Newspaper."

Author of many articles and monographs on journalism, including the recently-published "Concerning the Fourth Estate," Drewry is widely known in journalistic circles. Under his direction, the Georgia Scholastic Press Association was organized in 1928. He also directed the organization of the Georgia Collegiate Press Association in 1933 and has spoken to numerous groups of high school and college editors in Georgia and other states.

district; the Rev. W. M. Twigg, of the Griffin district; the Rev. Augustus Ernest, of the LaGrange district; Dr. W. M. Jones, of the Marietta district; and the Rev. H. C. Holland, of the Rome district. Official announcement of the new appointments will not be made until the closing hour, which is set for Monday morning.

Dr. C. C. Jarrell, Atlanta district presiding elder, will submit report of the year's work done by Atlanta Methodism. He will report the 48 pastoral charges in the district have a total membership of 35,000 persons, and that 1,400 new members have this year been received on profession of faith. The benevolence askings of $37,567 will be paid in full. Salaries of pastors have been increased at St. Mark, Druid Hills, Bethany, Peachtree Road and Glenn Memorial churches, he will report. Total amounts assessed for all pastors' salaries in the district will be paid more than 98 per cent.

$400,000 Raised.
Other financial items from the Atlanta district show that $2,800 was contributed in the Golden Cross enrollment, $12,000 for the orphans' home work day, $2,000 for superannuates' homes, and $400 for Bible school day. Total monies raised this year by Atlanta Methodist churches for all purposes will be more than $400,000. Debts on churches and parsonages have been paid in several instances, and new structures erected in others. Kirkwood church paid all indebtedness, while Epworth, Martha Brown Memorial, Haygood Memorial, Grace, Druid Hills, Hapeville, Peachtree road, Park street, St. Paul and other churches are retarding indebtedness on retirement schedule.

New building is reported at Ben Hill, within new parsonage; Mount Zion, a new $10,000 brick church; Bethany, a new parsonage; Oakland City bought a parsonage residence, and the Payne Memorial parsonage was reconstructed. Park Street and Collins Memorial churches have built new church school annexes.

Each one of the 48 pastoral charges has this year enjoyed good revival meetings. Meetings held at Grace, Kirkwood, East Point, St. Mark, St. Paul, Jefferson Street, Calvary, Druid Hills and Peachtree Road churches were said to have been notably successful. The Black visitation campaign was said to have been fruitful.

Dr. Jarrell, retiring from the presiding eldership after four years of consecutive service, has launched a progressive movement for the future of Atlanta Methodism, and has obtained the election of a city church extension board to promote the work. He urges a great church building in the northern section of the city.

Two young ministers from the Atlanta district are applying for admission on trial at this conference. They are Luther McArthur, now serving as pastor of St. Luke church, and Professor John D. Lee, of Emory University. The Rev. Cliff Brannon, of Wesley Memorial church, was licensed to preach during the year.

Bishop Decell has announced the appointment of Dr. W. G. Henry, a transfer from the North Alabama conference, as new presiding elder of the Atlanta district, to succeed Dr. Jarrell.

Laymen of the conference have been called by Lay Leader Smith L. Johnston, of Woodstock, to meet at the Henry Grady hotel at 12:30 o'clock today for luncheon and a pre-conference business session.

METHODIST GROUP MEETS TOMORROW

Ministers and laymen of the Georgia Methodist Protestant church will meet at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Cedar Grove church on McDonough road for the opening of their 109th annual conference.

The Rev. Walter M. Hunton, president of the Georgia annual conference, will preside. The Rev. James H. Straughn, of Baltimore, Md., president of the general conference, will speak at the opening session tomorrow. Other speakers will include the Rev. S. W. Taylor, of the North Carolina conference, and the Rev. F. L. Gibbs, general conference officers.

Success of Louis Hayward in Hollywood Leads to Their Marriage.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15.—(UP)—A two-year romance will culminate in marriage tomorrow for Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward, young screen players.

They left today for Santa Barbara, where they will be married in a simple ceremony attended only by a few friends and the bride-to-be's mother, Mrs. Stanley Lupino.

TWO MEN CONFESS KILLING WATCHMAN AT RHODES CENTER

Police Claim Admissions From Negroes, Who Deny They Got Money.

The mysterious murder of Thomas H. Herd, elderly night watchman at Rhodes Center, was believed solved yesterday through confessions of two negroes, Atlanta detectives disclosed.

Detective Superintendent J. A. McKibben said that Raymond Carter, 22, sentenced to the December 9 for the slaying last October 25 of Police Chief Charles Thornton, of Jackson, first confessed the murder Sunday.

Then yesterday, Superintendent McKibben said, Richard Smith, 30, of 344 Newton street, named by Carter as his accomplice in the slaying, broke down under continuous police questioning and admitted a part in the crime.

Smith named Carter as the actual slayer, but both denied the safe, from which nearly $1,000 in cash was taken, had been disturbed.

The safe robbery occurred in a liquor store at the center. Herd was found dying from a head injury a few yards away from the robbed store. Both confessions disclosed Herd had been slugged to death with a milk bottle filled with sand and wrapped in a napkin.

Carter confessed Sunday at Jackson to Detectives M. B. Johnson and D. L. Taylor, who have been working on the case since the murder on the morning of October 25, and then was brought here from Jackson Monday.

Smith's confession stated that he threw a brick through a window of the liquor store, and that Herd came running out of an alley, pistol in hand. The watchman ordered them to halt. Smith charged that Carter slipped up behind Herd and slugged him on the head.

MILK FORCES MASS FOR FINISH FIGHT

Chicago, Nov. 15. (AP)—Ninety-seven officials and organizations charged with violating the anti-trust laws in the milk and ice cream industries marshalled their forces for a finish fight tonight.

Shortly after two federal grand jury indictments had been made public, the defendants and their attorneys started a parade to the courthouse to post bond of $1,000 each as the first step in legal battle against the latest move in the government's extensive drive against alleged monopolies.

City officials, business executives and labor leaders were among the 43 individuals and 14 firms and associations named in the milk bill.

North Georgia Counties Organize Association To Push Livestock

Cherokee Group, Formed at Meeting Here, Will Promote Balanced Farm Program Through 26 Member Bodies in Individual Counties.

Impetus to a balanced farm program—dedicated to increasing agricultural income and making farmers more self-sustaining—was given yesterday as representatives of 26 north Georgia counties organized the Cherokee Livestock Association.

The meeting was held at a downtown hotel, with the Georgia Power Company as host at luncheon to farmers, county agricultural agents, businessmen and bankers, who pledged co-operation in rehabilitation of north Georgia farms through "a sane and diversified farming program."

T. O. Asbury, McDonough, was elected president; J. A. Maxwell, Covington, secretary—treasurer, will serve in an active managerial capacity; C. H. Blacklock, Rabun Gap, and Billy Mundy, Jonesboro, vice presidents, and Roy Ulrich, Atlanta, assistant secretary.

The name "Cherokee" is a historical allusion to the fact that the vast north Georgia territory represented in the 26 member counties once was the hunting grounds for the Cherokee Indians.

Principal tenets of the constitution are:

1. Co-operation with state and federal agencies in disease control.
2. Co-operation with the educational program of the state and federal extension forces and other agencies.
3. Adjustments of freight rates favorable to Georgia livestock and poultry producers.
4. State and national legislation in the interest of livestock, dairy and poultry producers.

Dr. Charles Daniel Bowdoin, 33, of 1140 St. Augustine place, N. E., who is under $5,000 bond in connection with an automobile accident in which a young woman was killed Sunday morning, was admitted to Emory University hospital at noon yesterday, suffering a fractured skull.

After his arrest following the accident, Dr. Bowdoin was placed in the DeKalb county jail and held until Sunday afternoon. Even after his release, he did not appear to be injured and went to his office in the Georgia Board of Health for a short time.

However, according to his father, Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, the health board physician complained of stiffness Monday afternoon and his head was X-rayed at the hospital. The X-rays yesterday showed he suffered a fractured skull behind his left ear and he was admitted to the hospital. Attaches said his condition was "good" last night.

Those who believe prosperity and peace will come to the world when its college professors and its businessmen develop a proper respect for each other should be interested in a proposal we heard launched when we were in Nashville recently at the annual convention of the Middle Tennessee Education Association. The proposal, in an address by Dr. Allen A. Stockdale, of the speakers' bureau of the National Association of Manufacturers, was that visiting professors should be established between education and industry "so that educational leaders may learn how to teach students practical knowledge and in turn teach business leaders the principles underlying their practical tasks."

In the opinion of too many businessmen, college professors and the educational and scientific impulses they represent are set aside and given over to mere "theory."

Not many college professors could be made into successful businessmen by associating with Henry Ford or J. P. Morgan. Being a successful businessman seems to depend on what interests you and what your character and tastes are as well as on your education and intelligence. Neither, for the same reasons, could any businessman be made into successful college professors, perhaps. But between them, they can be made to understand and associate with each other, businessmen and college professors ought to be able to create the sort of world in which more success is possible for everybody.

Last year's annual report 2,414 churches in the convention with a total membership of 481,206 persons, 18,307 baptisms, 252,870 persons in Sunday school. It is expected that this year's reports will show a substantial increase in membership, particularly by profession of faith. The total membership at this time is more than 500,000.

The Negro Baptist Convention of Georgia, meeting yesterday in Macon, reported 4,092 churches with 552,249 members, and 21,976 baptisms for the year. There are 5,308 negro Baptist ministers in Georgia. Dr. D. D. Crawford is executive secretary of the Negro Baptist Convention of Georgia, and Dr. L. A. Pinkston is the president.

All of which brings to mind the old story that a visitor in Georgia asked a well-known statehouse officer some years ago what was the geological formation of the state, and he answered, "Principally Baptists."

TODAY'S CROSS WORD PUZZLE

RIVERS WESTWARD
Emigrants Win First Attack. Women Help by Pouring Hot Water on Indians

By DENVER BARDWELL.

At close range Boone shot down half a dozen of the crowding hordes that leaped across the grass flames. Then he found his guns empty at last while eight or ten more savages came leaping over their dead comrades. One of the painted leaders jumped upon the back end of the wagon with a wild whoop of triumph. Boone flung himself to his feet to grapple with the bold warrior, but a few drops of scalding water splashed his face and neck, and sent him dancing backward against Manning's wagon front.

The Indian leaped into the air from the back end of the Hunt wagon, screaming an entirely different note to his recent wild war cry, fell on the heads of the charging friends and hit the ground, squirming in agony. Boone's hasty, startled glance upward saw Alice Markley standing at the opening of the wagon sheet, a bucket of half-spilled steaming water held menacingly in her hands.

Manning yelled a warning cry just behind Boone and lifted his rifle muzzle to fire so close to Boone's face that the flame scorched his cheek and the explosion deafened his right ear. A lifted war club fell on the plainsman's head, hurting him painfully, but without sufficient drive to knock him out. He saw in a blur of action that Manning's shot had knocked the brawny club wielder backward a moment too quickly for the war-club blow to prove fatal. There was no time to thank Manning.

With clubbed, heavy steel revolvers, he lunged at the half dozen savages who came bulging over the intervening tongue of Manning's wagon. He fended the blow of a viciously driven tomahawk and crashed the weighty barrel of his right-hand gun on the shaven head of his attackers. Two tall, dark bodies poised to leap from the wagon tongue toward him with uplifted clubs. Three or four others crowded in the narrow space between the wagons to join in the rush at the same instant.

Alice Markley's voice cried a warning that Boone could not understand amidst the yells of the Indians, but a second later he knew what it was. More of the scalding water sprinkled off painted warrior bodies against his hands and face. A solid sheet of the steaming freshly boiled liquid settled down upon the closely-packed sextette of warwhooping killers.

A dizzying medley of brown bodies leaped and danced, or fell squirming upon the ground, emitting terrified screams of agony. Three staggered back into the flames of the burning grass. One squirming big buck on the ground clenched Boone's leg and stabbed a scalping knife into his thigh. Boone crushed his skull with a broadsided revolver blow. Manning, having reloaded his Enfield rifle, shot another who tried to arise with tomahawk in hand. If there were more, they had fled by now beyond the flaming grass which had spread into a solid barrier against further attack here.

Boone snatched the scalping knife from his hip pressed his hand over the wound and rushed to the front of Hunt's wagon. Hunt was hurriedly cramming new loads into the barrels of his muzzleloader. His son, considerably disheveled, stood upon the wagon tongue over his father, an ax held with both hands. Boone did not stop to count the brown bodies tumbled about on the ground between the wagons and out toward the burning grass. He quickly ascertained that the wound on Hunt's bare head was not serious, saw Miss Hunt's anxious face in the front entrance of the wagon as she cried questions at her husband, then ran along the curving line of wagons.

Everywhere he shouted at the men to reload the guns in readiness for another attack, but astonishment at the sights he saw mounted as he went forward. Everywhere he saw dead Indians strewn between and beyond the wagons and many of them had striking appearances, as if having been scalded in the same manner as those at his own post. He saw one white man lying dead, his scalp half torn off and the motionless body of his would-be scalper lying across his legs, the reddened knife still clutched in his brown hand.

Biff Sanderson came running to meet Boone, shouting like a boy gone wild with a new toy. "We beat 'em off, Jeff! We whupped the devils, good'n plenty!" Boone took his hand from his bleeding hip and began to reload one of his guns.

"We had a little hand in the fight, Biff," he said, "but the women folks done most of the beating off with their boiling water. They must've got up that idea 'mongst themselves, out'n saying a word to us men about it. I got a nick in the hip. If you're all right, hadn't you better slip out 'round the end of the grass fire, where you can see beyond that big wad of smoke, and find out what the devils are lining up for us next?"

"I'll do that little chore immediately, and right glad," Sanderson agreed, and trotted away toward the river.

Boone returned to the Hunt wagon. Alice bathed his wound with hot water and dressed it with nimble, fast-working hands as she and Mrs. Hunt had already done for wounded Elias Hunt. While she worked, Boone talked. "Did you women folks get up that idea together about the scalding water?" he asked her.

"We had to do our part in some way, didn't we?" Alice asked. "We had plenty of water and a lot of the buffalo chips the men had brought in—and they certainly do make a hot fire for boiling water. I surely thought once, though, that you were going to catch some of that water."

There was a quiet, unboastful manner of efficiency about the girl which opened a new facet of her character to Boone.

"You women saved us that time," he told her and Mrs. Hunt. "You better get your water ready again. They'll be back soon's the grass fire dies out."

"We've used up all the buffalo chips," Alice said worriedly. "We couldn't heat a pint of water now on what fire is left."

Biff Sanderson came up to the front of the Hunt wagon and said, "The red devils are holding a big powwow 'bout a half mile off. They come at us thataway."

Boone limped from the wagon and looked out upon the great billowing clouds of white smoke rising from the prairie all around the wagon train. The new crop of green grass, as he had feared, was smothering out the fire, throwing up a thick wall of smoke, but little flame. There were patches here and there where rifts revealed total dying out of the fire already.

Boone turned back. He had scarcely stepped over a wagon occupant abandoned to the sound of an ugly, ripping explosion that came from the far north side of the wagon circle. Horses and mules in the center of the large enclosure whinnied and brayed in fright, cows bellowed and all of them clambered in a threat of stampede.

People yelled in great fright over on the north side, crying, "Fire!" calling for water, running to and fro around a smoking wagon. Boone ran with Sanderson, Harold Manning and young Elias Hunt. The older Hunt had gone away to check up on the dead and wounded among his people.

Boone quickly discovered that the grass fire had crept in under one of the wagons and set its pine board bottom on fire. The wagon occupants had abandoned it to help repel the attack and had been unaware of the fire when it started. The explosion had splintered the airtight box of the bottom and lifted nearly all the wagon sheet off the wagon top.

Somebody rushed up with water buckets and put out the lingering flames around the wagon bottom. The emigrant owner and his wife stood by, dismayed at the wreckage.

Boone approached the man and asked, "What'd you have in that bottom to make such a big blow-up?"

The man looked at Boone, frightened, and said emphatically, "I've got no slightest idea, Mr. Boone. We didn't have a thing in that wagon bottom that orta blow up that way. Our can of coal oil is settin' in a frame I fixed for it up at the top back end, so it wouldn't stink up all our other stuff."

Boone saw something brassy sparkle on the ground under the wagon and went to get a closer view. He recognized rifle cartridges scattered on the ground. He stooped and saw the dangling butts of two new rifles almost ready to fall out of an opening made by the explosion in the bottom of the wagon.

Boone threw himself in under the wagon and pulled the two rifles down from the gaping, splintered hole. Black stains of gunpowder covered the splinters and edges of the ragged hole, a different shade of black from the fire soot that covered the whole burnt bottom of the wagon.

Working faster and faster, incredulity changing to speechless astonishment, Boone felt within the hole and brought out three more brand-new Enfield rifles and several boxes of loaded cartridges. Biff Sanderson was down on his knees, grabbing the rifles and cartridge boxes from Boone as soon as he removed them. The old plainsman became excited and jumped up to face the blank-looking emigrant owner of the wagon. "We'd you keep all these here guns and ammunition hid when we needed 'em so bad?" he yelled.

Boone crawled out from under the wagon with alacrity that showed he had completely forgotten his wounded hip. He jumped up and slapped Sanderson's back with a heavy hand, shouting as if he'd gone suddenly wild. "Hooray!" he yelled. "Mr. Hunt! Get Mr. Hunt there, quick! The big mystery is all out! Grab axes, everybody! Cut open the bottoms of every last wagon here! There's good rifles and lots of ammunition hid in false bottoms! Hurry 'fore the red devils come back on us! Hurry! Hurry!"

Riots Against Jews Anger Goering

Fears Setback to His Four-Year Program; Frantic, Pitiful Groups Besiege U. S. Consulate.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—(P)—General Hermann Wilhelm Goering was reported in reliable quarters tonight to have been in an angry mood when he learned of the new wave of Nazi anti-Semitic violence, on the grounds that it severely jolted the four-year economic plan he directs.

The field marshal was reported to have given strict orders to cease property destruction.

He was said also to have berated those responsible for damages costing millions of dollars, but the smashing of a laundry and a grocery near Tempelhof airdrome in Berlin last night indicated disregard for his orders.

U. S. Consulate Besieged.

The staff of the United States consulate was almost at the end of its endurance after five days of attempting to solace frantic Jews who sought comfort and safety near the American flag.

The lines of Jews and others seeking immigration visas for other help have extended often far out into the street before the consulate. Consulates of other nations have been besieged likewise.

"I am through," one consular official said in despair as he emerged for lunch with several companions.

"Just as I was leaving, two mothers plaintively held their babies up to me."

Plead for Visas.

"For God's sake, give us visas so we can find our husbands," they said. "That was the final straw. It got me."

Hitherto one refuge for Jews after they had stood for hours before the United States consulate was a large, comfortable tea room in the building occupied by the consular officials. But this was eliminated as a haven today when a sign was put up reading, "Jews not wanted."

United States Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson, recalled in Washington for what informed quarters thought was a report on the entire German situation especially the anti-Jewish wave, called on Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop today preparatory to sailing on the liner Manhattan Thursday.

Jewish Colony Urged.

It was understood one possible solution urged upon him was that some colony now held under a mandate by another country and formerly belonging to Germany be opened to Jews for mass emigration from Germany.

A definite note of surprise and indignation over the proportions of the criticism abroad in the wake of last week's anti-Semitic outbreaks and subsequent measures ending Jewish participation in national life was struck in the German press.

A foreign office mouthpiece, the Deutsche Diplomatische Politische Korrespondenz, took note of the feeling and issued a summary of the Jewish situation with the observation that "it is all too soon forgotten how and why the problem came to a head."

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, Angriff, and other newspapers used headlines like "Poor Jew With 12,000,000 Marks" over lists of properties of Jews, or shown in reports of Jews' wealth made under a decree of last April.

The paper reported that 35,802 Berlin Jews possessed property and money aggregating at least 5,000 marks ($2,000). Of this number the paper said 894 possessed at least 300,000 marks ($120,000), 348 had at least 50,000 marks ($20,000), and so on.

Removal of All Jews From Reich Is Considered by Britain and U. S.

Plan Believed To Be Drafted by Kennedy Contemplates Co-operation of South America, France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—(P)—Urged by United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy, the British government tonight considered a new scheme for leading to mass exodus of Jews from Germany.

The plan was believed to have been drafted by the ambassador himself.

Britain's dominions, colonies and mandate territories, together with the United States, South American nations, France, Belgium and The Netherlands, it was understood, would try to move the majority of the 600,000 Jews still in the Reich, not just a part of them.

Kennedy conferred with Prime Minister Chamberlain at No. 10 Downing street and it was believed both Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax liked the plan and agreed to try it.

To expedite a solution of the problem, intensified by last week's wave of violence against Jews in Germany and by ensuring restrictive decrees, the United States and British colonies may be asked to take some refugees immediately.

It was possible a conference might be called soon to allocate the refugees. Ambassador Kennedy, however, refused to make public the details of the plan.

Though the attitude of the Dominions was not known yet, co-operation of The Netherlands government was assured.

Chamberlain received a deputation of leading Jews including Viscount Samuel, Viscount Bearsted, Chief Rabbi Joseph H. Hertz, Neville J. Laski, Lionel de Rothschild and Dr. Chaim Weizmann.

Reliable quarters said the British government had kept under consideration the possibility of "approaching Germany at the appropriate moment" to obtain an orderly emigration of Jews under the intergovernmental committee headed by George Rublee, of the United States.

It was understood that several informal talks between the British embassy at Berlin and the German foreign office had been held.

gions, should arise, France would be pledged to settle her part by conference negotiations as was done at Munich.

2. Germany, therefore, would be free to pursue her own policies in eastern Europe without fear of trouble on her western frontier provided she did not threaten or attempt to attack France either by armed force or propaganda.

LINDBERGH HUNTS BERLIN RESIDENCE

May Spend Winter There in Aviation Research.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was described today by German friends as finding the Reich such a center for scientific aviation research that he wished to spend the winter in Berlin provided he could get suitable living quarters.

With this in view he left his plane here when he departed from Berlin October 29.

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering conferred one of the highest German decorations on Lindbergh October 19 at a party given by Hugh R. Wilson, United States ambassador.

Lindbergh's German friends were particularly anxious to find a house with a garden for him so his two small sons might have a place to play.

at the New York World's Fair. A few months later President Roosevelt took the initiative in organizing an international committee for the care of racial and political refugees from Germany and Austria.

Still later Mr. Roosevelt intervened in the German-Czechoslovakian crisis which culminated peacefully with the Munich accord. He and Chamberlain, Hitler exchanged notes which left little doubt over the United States' perturbation over the then threatened dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Displeasure Over Austria.

Prior to the Munich accord the United States had shown sharp displeasure over Germany's bloodless conquest of Austria and had curtly demanded that the Berlin government assume responsibility for Austria's debts to this country. To date Germany has not responded.

Another complicating factor is the Reich government's attempt to penetrate United States markets in South America. This is expected to be a major topic at the forthcoming Lima Pan-American conference which Mr. Roosevelt hopes will further solidify the bond of friendship among the nations of this hemisphere.

United States commerce with Germany is at the lowest ebb since the World War. This is one of the primary reasons why Berlin has turned toward South American nations as outlets for her products.

The President issued his statement while the nation was protesting almost in unison against Nazi persecution of the Jews.

The National Broadcasting Company announced tonight that high Catholic dignitaries, including Governor Al Smith, of New York, and Archbishop John J. Mitty, of San Francisco, will participate in another radio denunciation of Germany tomorrow night.

There have been several near-ruptures since that time. Germany protested strenuously last year when Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia, of New York, suggested Hitler for a "chamber of horrors"

gions, should arise, France would be pledged to settle her part by conference negotiations as was done at Munich.

F. D. R. BALKS ISMS, CULT HEAD ASSERTS

Zion City Colony Leader Cites Roosevelt as Savior of Democracy.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

"President Roosevelt is the greatest barrier between isms and democracy," Wilbur Glenn Voliva, head of the religious colony at Zion City, Ill., declared here in an interview last night.

Voliva, whose theory that the earth is flat has helped to make him famous, stopped in Atlanta overnight with Mrs. Voliva, en route to their winter home in Coral Gables, Fla.

Asked to comment on the record of Ambassador Hugh R. Wilson from Berlin, Voliva said:

"So far as anyone not in the confidence of the President can determine, the recall of the envoy was to get first-hand information concerning the exact situation in Germany. He will make concrete suggestions on the policy of this government toward Germany if that country should continue its very harsh policy in her treatment of the Jews."

Voliva disclosed that he voted a Democratic ticket in the general election, his first in 58 years. He explained the Republican defeats of 1932 and 1936 on the ground that they "were still using the stage coach of politics," and "persistently refused to recognize any progressive ideas."

As for the future, he said:

"The Republican party is now trying to shelve its old leaders, and replace them with young men—who are attempting to steal the thunder of the New Deal—and again restore themselves to power in this country."

"They will succeed only if the opposing party swings too far to the left. If the New Deal can be kept in the middle of the road between the various isms and democracy, I am inclined to think the New Deal will remain in power."

"I consider President Roosevelt the one great barrier between the isms and democracy. I believe he has shown great wisdom in meeting the isms down the road and opening the way to the mass of the people for remedial measures. I would not be surprised if by 1940 the labels 'Democrat' and 'Republican' will disappear altogether, and that there will be two major groups, liberals and conservatives."

"I consider President Roosevelt the greatest humanitarian of the day. His objectives are entirely sound. Some of his methods may be defective, and therefore subject to constructive criticism, but on the whole his program is right."

NAZI CONDEMNATION SWELLS IN AMERICA

New Requests for Roosevelt To Protest to Hitler Pour In.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(P)—Commendation of the summons of the United States ambassador from Germany for "report and consultation" was mixed tonight with added denunciation of the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign and new requests to President Roosevelt to register this country's protests with the Reich.

"If the technical recall is intended as a protest and remonstrance against persecution in Germany, it deserves the wholehearted approval of the American people," said Representative Fish, Republican, New York, ranking Republican member of the house committee on foreign affairs.

However, he added, "If Secretary Hull is using the persecution of the Jews as a smoke screen to punish the Nazi government for refusing to co-operate with his trade treaties, then the facts should be made known."

Chorus of Approval.

The executive committee of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, the Associated Church Press and the Young Men's Board of Trade of New York likewise voiced approval of the action of the President and secretary of state.

Gave Nazis the 'Excuse'

It was a shot fired by this German-born Polish Jew that the Nazis are using as an excuse for the current reign of terror against Germany's Jewish population. He is Herschel Grynszpan, 17, who slew Ernst vom Rath, German diplomat serving in Paris.

Paris, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Herschel Grynszpan, 17-year-old Polish Jew, who shot and killed Ernst vom Rath, of the German embassy here, said tonight during a legal examination that he was "profoundly sorrowful" that his act had led to a wave of violent anti-Semitism in Germany.

Grynszpan denied German assertions that the shooting was a "Jewish plot" and that others were involved.

Grynszpan said his parents, who once owned important mills in Hanover, were slowly reduced to ruin and finally forced to sell out their holdings after the Nazis came to power.

The youth was examined regarding his activities prior to the shooting at the German embassy as a special French funeral train bearing vom Rath's swastika-draped casket left the Gare du Nord at 10:50 p. m. for a martyr's funeral in Germany.

He said he acted entirely alone after receiving word that his father and mother had been deported from Germany last month in the Reich's mass expulsion of Polish Jews.

Under the German "reign of terror," the resolution said, "there is being committed robbery, assault, murder and other forms of persecution of people whose only crime is their desire to continue to worship in the faith of their fathers."

Severance of diplomatic relations with Germany was suggested by Senator Henry F. Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, at Phoenix.

Describing Adolf Hitler, German chancellor, as a "madman," the senator said "as far as the administration is concerned, it should sever diplomatic relations with Germany."

SOUTHEASTERN HOLDS AN EDGE OVER SOUTHERN

Deep Dixie Teams Win Eight of 12 Games With Rivals.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 15.—(AP) Southeastern Conference schools maintained their supremacy over their former brethren of the Southern Conference in interloop football tests during the 1938 season.

With the rivalry between the circuits completed for the year, the records show that the deep Dixie members have scored eight triumphs in a dozen games played, counting 191 points to 94 for the Southern Conference competitors.

Georgia whipped three Southern rivals, The Citadel, Furman and South Carolina, while Tennessee beat The Citadel and also handed Clemson Tigers their only defeat this fall.

Tulane broke even in two close scraps, dropping a 13-10 decision to Clemson but defeating North Carolina 17-14.

Kentucky yielded to Clemson and Washington and Lee, and Duke bested Georgia Tech in the other Southern triumphs. Florida upset Maryland and Alabama conquered North Carolina State.

Meanwhile, members of the Southern loop turned down the final lap of their cards with resumption of stiff practice sessions today for important clashes Saturday and Thanksgiving Day.

Richmond's Spiders, enjoying their best season since 1934, were faced with the problem of replacing Ed Merrick, ace center, for the final William and Mary game. A fracture of the right fibula, just below the knee, was discovered last night.

Graham Edwards, Citadel's triple threat, was not in uniform as the light brigade prepared for Friday's scrap with Erskine. Duke's Red Devils, who meet North Carolina State Saturday at Durham, were idle yesterday, but the Wolfpack practiced behind locked gates.

Three first stringers were on the injured list at V. M. I. where Coach Pooley Hubert was attempting to get his Keydets keyed up for a meeting with the strong Roanoke College Maroons. They were Red Echols, guard, and Frank Carney and Phil Chapman, backs. Coach Rex Enright said he expected to have his South Carolina squad at full strength for the first time since the opening of the season, for Fordham.

Primo Carnera Says He's Madly in Love

GORIZIA, Italy, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Keep in mind that Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champion of the world, has decided to go into the movies and that this may have sprung from the mind of a press agent. Anyway, Primo's in love. The lady's name is Giuseppina Cavazzo, of Santa Lucia, and she is a postal clerk. The news of his romance got out when he passed through here, shouting: "I have to see her. I am madly in love with her. She has simply got to marry me."

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

Football teams enjoying the most success in this balmy football season all have stand-out backs. That is to say, one back who seems always able to arise to the occasion.

Other teams have lacked a spark of greatness because they didn't have the one back to show the way.

Jimmy Conzelman, the Washington U. coach, hit the nail on the thumb several weeks ago in a Post story when he said he'd take the backs—all eleven on the same team, if necessary.

And it is not hard to understand when you look around and see what backs have meant to the success and, yes, failure of big teams this fall.

I think the most notable example of what a back meant to his team came in the Pittsburgh-Carnegie Tech game. Great as Pitt was supposed to be, loss of Goldberg in the first quarter wrecked the Panthers.

It generally was agreed by observers that Goldberg's absence meant the difference between defeat and victory for the Panthers. They lacked a winning spark after he was carried from the field.

Columbia has had an indifferent season, but without Sid Luckman it is very likely the Columbia team's season would have been so bad it couldn't even come under the indifferent class.

The really successful teams are being sparked by great backs. Take Tennessee, which is what everybody has been trying to do this season with no success.

George Cafego, called Bad News because he travels fast and often, is the big gun of the Volunteer team. He means no more to the Tennessee team than the air does to the football. Tennessee has other good backs, but Cafego is the "climax back." He's the one they can count on in a pinch.

The Duke team, which probably is the greatest team in the nation today, has Eric (The Red) Tipton. And while O'Mara, Spangler and McAfee are fine backs, Tipton is the siege gun. He's the spot performer. No great team can do without one.

Texas Christian has Davey O'Brien. He is a climax passer. He hauls off now and then and runs the football for good yardage, but his passing has carried the Horned Frogs along to national recognition. He is about as indispensable to T. C. U. as cleats are to the football shoes the players wear.

Notre Dame's ace back is Bob Saggau, the red-haired sophomore. The Fighting Irish have legions of backs. But always in the pinch it's Saggau who runs or passes and keeps the victory march going.

No team is great without a great back. And I mean by great back, the one who is there in the pinch.

ALABAMA'S TROUBLE

The Crimson Tide of Alabama has everything but a climax back. It has cost the Tide the difference between a great and an average season.

Frank Thomas probably has the rudiments of a better team than last year. But last year he had Joe Kilgore. Kilgore could be counted upon for a run or a pass in a crucial spot. Alabama doesn't have such a back this year.

And the difference in having a stronger line is overbalanced by the lack of a runner or passer of the Kilgore type. And it makes all the difference.

Georgia Tech could have gone places this year with a back of, say, the Sims type. Tech has had no break-away runner. The threat wasn't there.

L. S. U. has been in a similar spot. The Tigers have had all the man power a team could use. But the sparkplug back is missing. Auburn has had similar trouble.

Harry Mehrer would fight his weight in wildcats if a question arose of harm coming to Parker Hall, the triple-threat back of the Ole Miss team. Hall is the Ole Miss team. That is to say, he's the generator.

An automobile can't run without gasoline—and neither can a football team go anywhere without a swivel-hipped, bullet-armed back who throws fear in the

INJURY TO LEG HAS JUNO PAGE TAKING IT EASY

Gilmer, Wesley and Hart Promoted From Bee Squad to Varsity.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Georgia Tech returned to strict fundamentals in their football practice yesterday as they prepared for the first scrimmage against Florida plays this afternoon.

Kicking, blocking, tackling and signals occupied the entire afternoon as Coach Bill Alexander sought to get the staleness out of the players after their two-day layoff. The Jackets were given a holiday Monday after their hard battle with Alabama's Crimson Tide.

Another minor injury turned up as a result of the Tide game. It was revealed Juno Page received a bad blow on the calf of his leg. Page was at practice but hobbled through light exercises. However, he is expected to be ready for the 'Gators.

INJURY LIST

Estor Lackey, who re-injured a knee in scrimmage Monday, was also out of uniform along with Page, Walter Rimmer and Allen Wilcox. They will be ready to play Saturday.

Three players were moved up from the Bee team as a result of several shifts in personnel made by Coach Alex.

Bud Gilmer, workhorse blocking back, End E. P. Wesley and Guard Jim Hart were those promoted to the varsity.

GOOD CONDITION

The squad, with the exception of the injuries mentioned, is in good condition after their bruising battle with Alabama. Spirit is excellent and the Jackets are looking only to the Florida game, forgetting Georgia and possibly California.

They remember their narrow escape at the hands of so-called weak Kentucky and determined Josh Cody's eleven will not give them as much trouble.

The varsity will get their first rough work today with another scrimmage scheduled tomorrow. Pass defense and work against plays of the sunshine state boys will occupy most of the time today and tomorrow they will spend time brushing up on their own attack.

Florida To Depart For Atlanta Friday

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Florida's 'Gators drew another menu of passes, dummy scrimmage and wind sprints today as they prepared to meet Georgia Tech at Atlanta Saturday.

Head Coach Josh Cody apparently was determined to have his squad in the best possible shape. He continued the light conditioning exercises and strove to improve Florida's aerial attack.

For the first time, Cody named as his first team the same combination which started against Maryland last Saturday.

The 'Gators will leave Friday morning by bus for Atlanta.

THOMAS BANNED IN PENNSYLVANIA

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—(AP) The State Athletic Commission today banned Harry Thomas, Eagle Bend, Minn., boxer from fighting in Pennsylvania.

Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., heavyweight scored a technical knockout over Thomas in the third round last night.

Jules E. Aronson, a member of the commission, asked the commission to concur in withdrawing Thomas' license "because in my opinion Pennsylvania would be much better off with the elimination of boxers of his calibre."

New Coach Staff Rumored for Iowa

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Nov. 15.—(AP) Although he declined to issue a formal statement, E. G. (Dad) Schroeder, director of University of Iowa athletics, today inferred a new coaching staff would be named here as soon after the close of the season as possible.

"The board in control of athletics has many things to consider," Schroeder said, "and after weighing all of the problems in the current situation, something will have to be done."

Just what the "something" would be, Schroeder refused to say, but he indicated the answer was a new coaching staff.

Reports circulated that the board already had selected a successor to Irl Tubbs who had been here two years ago from Miami (Fla.) University. They were denied, however, by university officials.

Stearns To Head State Semi-Pros

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 15.—(AP) President Ray Dumont, of the National Semi-Pro Baseball conference, announced today Joe Stearns, of Atlanta, had been named Georgia commissioner of semi-pro baseball to supervise the 1939 state tournament next July at Atlanta.

SMITHIES PREP FOR BOYS' HIGH FRIDAY NIGHT

Frank Heinold, hard-driving Tech High fullback (with the ball), is trying to get away from Dick Guthrie, Smithie tackle, as Tech High prepares for the city championship game Friday night at Ponce de Leon park. Both players have been outstanding throughout the season for the Smithies. The rough work ended Tuesday.

JACOBUS AGAIN TO HEAD P. G. A.

George Norrie, of Macon, Is Named as a Vice President.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—(UP)—George R. Jacobus, Ridgewood, N. J., storm center of many controversies within the Professional Golfers' Association in recent years, today was re-elected to his seventh consecutive term as president of the P. G. A.

He was opposed for the presidency by Tom Walsh, Chicago, who was named secretary. The vote for Jacobus was 40 to 26.

Jack Mackie, Rockaway, N. Y., was elected treasurer and the following vice presidents were named:

East: Ed Ditley, Philadelphia; Midwest: Frank Spogrell, Kent, Mich.; south: George Norrie, Macon, Ga.; Pacific coast: Dewey Longworth, Oakland, Cal. and large, Tom Boyd, New York; Captain Charles Clarke, Cleveland; Willie Maguire, Houston, Texas; and Ray Hall, Portland, Oregon.

The association, holding its twenty-second meeting, announced that Fred Corcoran, of Boston, had been reappointed tournament manager for the year ending November 30, 1939.

TECH RUNNERS BEAT GEORGIA

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 15.—Georgia Tech's varsity and freshman cross-country teams won a double victory over the University of Georgia runners here today.

Art Small, of Tech, came in first followed by Georgia's Henry Frederickson. The varsity was victor, 20-41, while the frosh won, 18-42.

Cash, of the Tech freshmen, set a new record for the track, running it in 11 minutes and 40 seconds. The record was 12:18.

The results: Varsity—Small (T), Frederickson (G), Manley (T), Pearce (T), Connolly (T), King (G), Hooper (T), Rankine (T), Gergerson (T), Dyer (G), Smith (G), Cawthorne (G), Boddie (G). Time of winner, 18:09.

Clark 11 Engages Fisk Here Friday

Tickets for the Clark University and Fisk University football game to be played at Ponce de Leon park Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock will go on sale for white fans Thursday morning.

Fisk University being one of the highest seats of learning among colored institutions in the south, has a wide reputation here. Their football machine has suffered lean years in the conference, but they are definitely getting back in the top bracket of the conference and stand a good chance of ending the current season in the upper division by defeating both Clark and Morehouse. Morehouse will be played in Nashville Thanksgiving Day.

The Clark varsity stopped the Fisk plays and formations in a long scrimmage Tuesday. Time and again the alert secondary defense of the varsity knocked down the Bulldogs' passes and looked good against the Fisk running game. Every possible effort is being put forth to have the team in the best condition for this important contest.

North Fulton Closes Slate Thursday Night

Marietta Is Bulldog Opponent; G. M. A. Faces Bessemer at Ball Park.

By ROY WHITE.

With prep football interest centered in the Boys' High-Tech High game Friday night for the city prep championship, North Fulton, Russell and G. M. A. have moved their games up to Thursday night.

North Fulton, with probably the most improved team of the year, will close out its schedule Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock with Marietta High, a bitter North Georgia Interscholastic conference rival, as its opponent.

Starting the season by holding the highly favored Marietta team to a 7 to 0 score, North Fulton dropped a couple of games, but picked up momentum as the season moved along and now has a fine record, the best in the history of the school.

North Fulton has beaten Gainesville, Griffin, Fulton, Newnan and R. E. Lee, winning the last four in succession.

Only two touchdowns have been scored on North Fulton in the past four games, and Coaches Tucker and Kelly are centering their efforts on closing the season with a victory, making it five in a row.

Gray has been the outstanding performer for North Fulton and has scored 47 points. G. M. A., another of the improving teams, has come along well this season, losing only to Boy's High and Knoxville, while winning over Russell, LaFayette, Fort Payne, Commercial and Darlington.

The Cadets play Bessemer, Ala., Thursday night at the ball park. The game was originally scheduled for Saturday night at East Point.

Russell plays in Newnan Thursday night, while Commercial journeys to Columbus for a Friday night game, and Marietta College plays the undefeated and highly favored Richmond Academy eleven at Augusta.

Boys' High and Tech High held long rough scrimmages Tuesday afternoon in preparing for Friday night's championship battle.

Both teams are suffering from injuries, but every player will be ready for Friday's fray, though not in the best of condition.

Light drills are slated for today and Thursday in the final practice of the week.

Tech High holds a six to five advantage in state championships, although Boys' High two years ago won permanent possession of the Dartmouth trophy.

Billy Mims Plays For Georgia, Auburn

If you see a sentence in Sunday's Georgia-Auburn football story which reads "Billy Mims passed 25 yards to Spec Kelly," don't mutter unkind things under your breath about the writer.

Billy Mims is Georgia's best passer and Spec Kelly is an Auburn star. But the Tigers also have a Billy Mims playing for them and he, too, is quite a passer.

Georgia's Billy Mims hails from Atlanta and has accounted for many of the Bulldogs' touchdowns this season. Auburn's Billy Mims is from Haynesville, Ala., and started for the Tigers against L. S. U. last week.

To make them more similar—both are juniors, both play half-back and both are about the same size, weighing about 170 each.

AUBURN PLAYS FAIL TO PIERCE GEORGIA'S LINE

Cate To Be Ready for Tigers; Matthews, Gillespie Out.

ATHENS, Ga., Nov. 15.—With a determination that points toward trouble for Auburn, Georgia's gridiron crew this afternoon tore through Plainsman defense and smeared Tiger running plays in a practice skirmish with the Red and Black reserve squad.

The Red Devils lined up in Auburn formations in order that the Bulldogs may be somewhat familiar with the Orange and Blue type of battle when the old rivals meet Saturday at Columbus.

The Bulldog regulars tackled with a vengeance and crashed through the Red Devil setup many times during the afternoon.

Especially impressive on offense was the running of big Jim Fordham. Hard-plunging fullback, the first-string quarterback Bob Salisbury and the broken field running of speedy Earl Hise, the newly elected first-string fullback.

Hise, a sophomore, has seen much service this season and has started several encounters but has been second in line to Harry Stevens, the blond Atlanta speedster.

A recent switch made by Coach Joel Hunt which changed Stevens to wingback, left Hise as the ranking triple-threat.

Incidentally Stevens was performing well at his new assignment and should materially strengthen the wingback post which was left weakened by Tulane last Saturday. Vassa Cate, the first-string winger, sustained a leg injury while Dooley Matthews, his understudy, was eliminated from further competition with a broken arm.

Cate is making rapid recovery and, according to Trainer Fitz Lutz, will be in condition to show his heels to the Tigers Saturday.

Besides Matthews, the only other member of the Red and Black squad definitely out of the Plainsman encounter is Alternate Captain Marvin Gillespie, who has not recovered from a dislocated knee suffered in the Florida game two weeks ago.

Coach Hunt was inclined to believe the impressive showing made by his charges was partly due to weakened condition of the reserves. He stated that the Red Devils were not up to standard because of the constant hammering administered by the regulars in weekly preparations.

Coach Hunt substituted frequently in the varsity lineup, giving almost all of his regulars a crack at Tiger formations. With the exception of those on the hospital list, Captain Quinton Lumpkin, the Bulldogs' iron-man center, was the only one of Hunt's major performers who did not participate in the scrimmage.

Lumpkin, a prospective All-American, has played most of the Bulldogs' games this season.

Trojans Likely TO RECEIVE BID

Conference Names Team November 28 Before Notre Dame Tilt.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Southern California's hopes of playing in the Rose Bowl soared today with announcement the Pacific Coast conference would select its representative before the Trojan-Notre Dame football game December 3.

Professor Hugh C. Willett, president, said the 10 conference members would vote by Nov. 28. "We have always followed the procedure of voting after the final November games," he added.

The Trojans and California, each defeated once in conference play, are tied for first place. California plays Stanford Saturday and the Trojans face University of California at Los Angeles Thanksgiving Day.

Southern California defeated California, 13-7, but lost, 7-6, to off-beaten Washington Saturday.

Football observers said it has been an unwritten conference rule, in case of a tie, to favor the winner of the annual game between the two teams. Thus Southern California might get the Bowl bid if the Trojans and Bears wind up the season deadlocked.

Bowl sentiment on the Trojan campus had been shaky since the Washington defeat because it was feared the conference would hesitate to name Southern California if it lost to Notre Dame, even though it defeated U. C. L. A.

ATHLETIC DIRECTOR T. P. Heard said Chambers was granted leave until June 1, 1939, but it was learned that on that date his contract expires.

The L. S. U. athletic department considered candidates for a successor for Chambers, but indicated one would not be chosen at least until after the present football campaign is over, two weeks hence.

Chambers said he was considering "a fine business offer" and might leave the athletic training field.

MIKE CHAMBERS THROUGH ATLS.U.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Sport circles here said today the leave of absence granted Mike Chambers, athletic trainer at Louisiana State University, really meant the genial Irishman's connections at L. S. U. had been permanently severed.

Athletic Director T. P. Heard said Chambers was granted leave until June 1, 1939, but it was learned that on that date his contract expires.

The L. S. U. athletic department considered candidates for a successor for Chambers, but indicated one would not be chosen at least until after the present football campaign is over, two weeks hence.

Yanks To Propose A New Contract

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP) The New York Yankees, annoyed by the holdout stars of the past few seasons, are expected to propose a new form of player contract at this winter's major league baseball meetings. The change would call for salaries to start March 1 each year instead of with the opening of the season.

Such a shift would enable a club to penalize players who dodge spring training and pre-season exhibitions by firing them. It also would penalize the clubs, for they'd have to pay salaries to a flock of players they wouldn't expect to keep after the opening of the campaign.

Pitt Demands Freshmen Gridgers Pay Their Own Tuition

SCHOLARSHIPS WERE OFFERED, DECLARE BOYS

University Continues To De-Emphasize Sports With Drastic Step.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 15.—(UP)—University of Pittsburgh freshmen who thought they had entered school on athletic scholarships were presented with $150 bills for half-year tuition today and told to pay them.

The freshmen, some of whom are Coach Jock Sutherland's most promising football material in years, were promised additional job opportunities so they can pay for the tuition but they protested they already were having trouble keeping up with jobs, class work and football practice.

It was the third and most important demonstration that Pitt authorities meant business after Chancellor Dr. John G. Bowman said, late in 1937 while the Panthers were winning the mythical national championship, that sports would be "de-emphasized."

The first manifestation came when the Panthers announced they would refuse any invitation to the 1938 Rose Bowl game. That was attributed to the school's refusal to give "spending money" to the various squad members, and, too, a blue outlook by veteran members of the Panther team.

PLAYERS STRIKE.

The second came this fall when 18 sophomore squad members refused to practice only a few days before the first game in order to settle "differences" with the Pitt business department on how long and hard they should work on jobs around the building, and whether they should be given an advance on future earnings at their school jobs.

The first of this week the 33 members of the freshman football basketball squad were handed bills for the first half of their tuition charges and were told flatly the money was "payable currently."

When the freshmen claimed they entered school with the understanding they would receive athletic scholarships, Business Manager John Weber pointed to the program of sports de-emphasizing—which bans athletic scholarships of any kind.

Then Weber called attention to promissory notes for $300 full tuition fee—which the freshman athletes had made out to the school. The frosh said they understood the notes were only a formality, and that the athletic department would "take care" of them.

LONGER JOBS.

The situation resulted in Weber promising the boys longer jobs so they could work out the tuition. They now do 14 hours' work a week around the university and get $48 a month to care for board, room and clothing. The only trouble, they claim, is that they have much work now as they can handle: Classroom schedules, football practice and night work at the various jobs that are obtained for college students.

The freshmen hope to settle their problem by arbitration. They planned no walkout and continued practice for their last game of the season against Kiski prep school. There is a possibility that unless a solution is found, perhaps by drawing some of the de-emphasizing teeth, an alterna-

4 Sectional Titles At Stake Saturday

All Top Teams Except Tennessee Play; Irish Meet Northwestern.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(UP)—While four of the nation's "Big Five" unbeaten and untied eleven continued campaigning this week for the national title, sectional championships may be decided in four conferences.

In addition California can clinch at least a tie for the Pacific Coast Conference by beating Stanford Saturday.

JOHNSON, IRBY BOX THURSDAY

Another program of club fights will be offered by Rich Paul and Tommie Jones at the Central Athletic Club tomorrow night. The opening bill last week produced some lively scraps. All bouts are six and four-rounders and the boys bear down from gong to gong.

The most promising fight on this week's card will offer Bill Irby, Alabama heavyweight champion, against Earl Johnson, of Atlanta, who returns to the ring wars where he once was a star, after a lengthy layoff. Irby is well known in Dixie fight circles, having first gained prominence in the golden gloves tournament at Chicago.

In all, there will be five or six bouts, with popular prices featured.

The Central A. C. is located at 125 1-2 Luckie street.

Five may be withdrawn of some of the frosh from Pitt; and the squad contains some of the most promising material the school ever has had.

Ole Miss To Battle Razorbacks Today

Cripples Return to Rebel Lineup for Game With Arkansas at Memphis.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Seeking revenge for the defeat handed them last season, the University of Mississippi Rebels of the Southeastern conference will battle the University of Arkansas from the Southwest conference in Crump stadium here tomorrow.

Coach Harry Mehre's Ole Miss team is still in the running for its conference title, but Coach Fred C. Thomsen's Porkers are doing well to stay out of the cellar in the tough Southwest loop. The Rebels, reinforced by the return of cripples, are top-heavy favorites to down the Razorbacks.

Change in Cadence Solved Vandy Defense for Vols.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15.—(AP)—A simple change in the cadence of calling signals solved Vanderbilt's shilly defense last Saturday and enabled Tennessee to crush the Commodores, 14 to 0, Major Bob Neyland explained today.

Thousands of fans had wondered why the Vandy defense which had the Vols scoreless for three periods suddenly cracked. "We found out Vanderbilt was using our cadence to shift their defense," Neyland said, "so we just changed the cadence of the signal on which the center snapped the ball."

Before the Volunteers started their touchdown drive late in the third quarter, Vanderbilt had battled them virtually on even terms and the game seemed headed for a scoreless tie.

But midway the third period, the Vandy forwards were seen to fake shifts on defense and then not make them. Later, press box inhabitants noticed the Commodores stopped shifting.

"In the first two quarters," said Neyland, "our boys were puzzled by the shift. They didn't know whom to block. As a result, some of their linemen were not blocked out by anybody."

Thomas Says Holm Is Lost for Season.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 15.—(AP)—"It looks as if Charlie Holm is through," Coach Frank Thomas said today as he sent the Alabama football team through a light workout.

Fullback Holm, removed from the Alabama-Georgia Tech game last Saturday, suffered a recurring knee injury expected to keep him out of the Vanderbilt finale on Thanksgiving Day. Holm is a senior.

With Holm benched, Thomas shifted George Zivich, right halfback, to the fullback position and groomed Pig Davis to step into a varsity role against the Commodores.

Louisiana Reserves To Play Saturday

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Coach Bernie Moore, of Louisiana State, plans to use reserves for the most part in next Saturday's football game with Northwestern Louisiana Institute.

Moore said he would use his key varsity men sparingly to prevent their being hurt before the important climax game with Tulane the following week.

L. S. U. players enjoyed their second holiday from practice since their crushing defeat by Auburn last week. Practice will be resumed tomorrow.

Tennessee Drills On Pass Defense.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Tennessee's Volunteers took their first look today at Kentucky formations in a dummy pass scrimmage against a freshman team using Wildcat aerials.

Prior to the skirmish they indulged in a passing drill on their own plays with George Cafego, Babe Wood and Buist Warren tossing the ball. The Vols have used formations in a dummy pass scrimmage against a freshman team using Wildcat aerials.

Miss. State Polishes Offense for Lynx.

STARKVILLE, Miss., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The Mississippi State Maroons ran at full speed through their entire repertoire of plays today in an effort to polish up an offensive to match that of the strong Southwestern Lynx Saturday at Memphis, Tenn.

Oscar Weed, alternate captain and senior guard, received an injury in the Centenary game last week which will keep him out of the Southwestern game.

A broken cheek bone last week ended the service for the season for Captain Bud Gray, senior tackle, and James Box, fine sophomore tackle, went out for the remainder of the season with a lame shoulder.

Lunny Hollins Returns To Vandy Practice Field.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15.—(AP)—Lunny Hollins, an Vanderbilt backfield man, returned to practice today for the first time since he suffered a broken collar bone in the Georgia Tech game two weeks ago.

Although Hollins would be a welcome addition to the team for Thanksgiving Day when Vandy meets Alabama, there appeared to be little chance he would see any service. He has been advised to be extremely careful.

The first and second stringers were sent through a rough offensive scrimmage today, while the third-line squad members engaged the freshmen.

TIGER JACK FOX SIGNS TO MEET GAINER NOV. 29

Winner To Fight Bettina for John Lewis' Vacated Title.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(UP)—Tiger Jack Fox of Spokane, Wash., and Al Gainer, of New Haven, Conn., two negro veterans, signed today for a 15-round light heavyweight contenders' bout at the Bronx Coliseum on November 29.

The contracts, signed before the boxing commission, stipulated that the winner will meet Melio Bettina, a southpaw of Beacon, N. Y., for John Henry Lewis' vacated title some time in January. The Bettina bout may be held at Madison Square Garden or the Hippodrome.

This will be the second encounter between Fox and Gainer. They fought 15 rounds at Pittsburgh last year, and Gainer won a questionable decision.

The Bettina bout will be recognized as a title affair only in New York state, which vacated John Henry Lewis' title because of his refusal to defend the crown against Fox. Lewis is still recognized as champion by the National Boxing Association. However, John Henry may give up the title before he battles Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis at the Garden on January 27.

Promoter Mike Jacobs and two managers appeared at the commission meeting and posted forfeits of $2,000 each for Friday night's midweight title tilt at the Garden between Fred Apostoli, of San Francisco, and Young Corbett III, of Fresno, Cal. This bout also will be recognized as a championship brawl only in New York. The N. B. A. recognizes Solly Krieger, of Brooklyn, as champion.

Accordingly, Promoter Jacobs and the managers of Apostoli and Corbett agreed today that $2,000 will be taken from the purse of Friday night's winner and posted with the commission as a guarantee that the winner will defend against Krieger, if Krieger wishes to accept. The bout will be at the Garden on November 25, and was examined today by commission physicians and pronounced in excellent condition. Their bout was slated originally for November 2, but Armstrong injured his back in his last workout on November 1, causing postponement. The back responded to treatment and Armstrong is training daily.

Orange Bowl Field Includes Tide, Vols

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The committee in charge of the Orange Bowl football game here January 2 scheduled a meeting for late today to perfect ticket and other arrangements. Regional chairmen from other Florida cities were on hand.

It was thought likely the committee would discuss informally a list of teams considered as likely nominees for the classic but no selections will be made for some time.

Teams reported to be under consideration include Alabama, Tennessee, Holy Cross, Carnegie Tech, Boston College and Duke. Ohio interests have sought a bid for Western Reserve University on the basis of its undefeated and untied record so far but committee members were believed to feel that other schools were more entitled to recognition on the basis of their schedules.

Fulton High Meets Griffin Team Friday

GRiffin, Nov. 15.—Coach Frank Gant's Griffin High school grid squad will meet Fulton High, of Atlanta, at Lightfoot Park here Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. The Griffin squad has won three games, lost three and tied one so far this season, losing the last game to Decatur High in Decatur last Friday, 26 to 0. All members of the team came out of the Decatur game in good physical condition, Coach Gant said, and will be ready to go against Fulton.

Bill Breitenstein And Wife in Wreck

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 15.—(AP)—W. G. (Bill) Breitenstein, of Atlanta, widely known automobile racing promoter, and his wife narrowly escaped serious injury today in an automobile accident on the Macon-Columbus highway about 20 miles from this city.

County Police Officer J. T. Willett said Breitenstein lost control of his automobile when a negro boy darted across the road into the side of the machine. The vehicle overturned twice and was practically demolished.

The racing promoter escaped injury, but Mrs. Breitenstein was carried to the City hospital. She suffered bruises to her side and back, and shock. She was dismissed after treatment. The Breitensteins were en route from Macon to Greenville, Ala. Mrs. Breitenstein was to stop there to visit relatives and her husband had planned to continue to Laurel, Miss., where he is promoting a racing program tomorrow.

heart of the opposition every time he takes the snap from center.

Vanderbilt early counted the season a loss when Housman was injured and deprived to the team for the year. A back of his type means the difference between greatness and, perhaps, mediocrity.

The great backs deserve the credit they get. And they, in turn, reflect credit on the team and the coaches. That's fair enough.

COACHES CAN BE FOOLED.

One of the strangest stories of the year in football evolves around the University of Florida football team.

Coach Josh Cody, than whom there is no finer figure, was firmly convinced before the season opened that he would have a winning team. He believed in the team and he wasted no opportunities to tell everyone Florida would be good.

Now, Josh Cody is no pop-off. When he believes in a thing, he'll give an honest opinion. He told Florida alumni the Fighting Gators would win.

Cody had built his offense—and hopes—around Bud Walton, a former Riverside back. And just before the season opened, Walton was hurt. That naturally changed things.

Walton was to have been Cody's climax back. He was to have been the key man on reverses and his ace passer. And with Walton out, things immediately went haywire.

This was not taken into consideration by enthusiastic supporters when Florida started out badly and went from bad to worse. There were beatings at the hands of Stetson and Miami, minor Florida colleges.

Florida has had a terrible season and Josh Cody is being crucified because of it. There is certain to be a coaching change after this season.

They like Josh Cody, Florida people do, and they are expressing the hope something can be done to keep him in the athletic setup. But he is through as head coach.

It is strange how the wheel of fortune goes in coaching. Josh Cody was successful as a head coach at Mercer. Dan McGugin called him back to Vandy and he gladly went. Josh is an all-time tackle great at the Commodore school.

Josh took over the head coaching job at Clemson and when Dan McGugin again called him back to Vandy, it was shocking to the South Carolina military institution. He was offered a five-year contract to stay. But loyalty to McGugin caused Cody to pass up the tempting offer.

The wheel of fortune has spun again. And Josh Cody's number has come up. It would be rather nice if they could see fit to make him athletic director.

I don't see how they could find a finer man.

TOMMY ARMOUR PINEHURST STAR

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 15.—

(AP)—A brilliant record by the veteran Tommy Armour, of Boca Raton, Fla., whose individual ball of 67 was so low that even such an accomplished partner as Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va., could help him only one stroke, gave the Armour-Cruickshank pair a tie for the lead today in the first 18 holes of the 36-hole mid-south professional golf tournament. They turned in a 33-33-36.

Sharing the day's honors was a brand-new member in Clayton Heafner, of Greensboro, N. C., who played an individual round of 68 and was aided two strokes by his partner, Johnny Bulla, of Chicago, in scoring 33-33-36 to tie for the lead at the half-way mark.

Heafner was working in a candy factory in Charlotte, N. C., until three months ago when Orville White took him to Greensboro as his assistant. Bulla said Heafner had been defeating him regularly in practice so he decided to take him as his partner.

Henry Picard, the Hershey, Pa., star, said Heafner was the best performing player since Sam Snead broke into the big-time circuit. Heafner is 24 years old, was born in Charlotte, learned golf as a caddy.

Two other pairs were tied for third place with best ball scores of 67. They were Jack Grout, of Chicago, and Henry Picard with 34-33-67 and Jim Turnesa, of Providence, and Jack Patroni, of Shawnee, Pa., who were 33-34-67. Patroni finished the final 14 holes five under par with his own ball.

INSURANCE LEADER FEELS WAR FAR OFF

Europe Not on Verge of Conflict, Harold Smith Says.

Europe is not on the verge of a general conflict in the opinion of Harold Smith, of New York, president of the Home Insurance Company, who has just returned to this country after spending the summer and early fall abroad.

Smith arrived in Atlanta yesterday for a regional conference of his company, one of the largest fire underwriters in the country, and will leave tonight for a similar meeting in New Orleans.

"I was in Czechoslovakia during the height of the trouble," he said last night, "and in spite of everything I just didn't believe there would be a war. Nothing has happened since to make me change my opinion."

Asked about business conditions, Smith said it was "customary to predict improvement," but added that this time he really thought the upturn would continue.

"New York is much more optimistic than it has been in months," he said. "There has been a decided change for the better during recent weeks and I feel that business generally is going to keep on improving."

IRON LUNG ARRIVES AT GRADY MONDAY

V. F. W. Post Raised Funds for Equipment.

An iron lung to be presented to Atlanta and Fulton county by the Louis J. Dinkler Post No. 3563, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will arrive Monday, post officials announced yesterday.

The lung will be brought here by J. H. Emerson, representing the company which manufactures the artificial respirators. Dr. J. Moss Beeler, superintendent of Grady hospital, will invite a group of doctors to the hospital to inspect the "lung."

Funds for purchasing the respirator were raised in a two-month campaign sponsored by the post. The money was contributed through entertainments and special donations.

3 CASES IN GEORGIA WIN COURT RULINGS

Federal Project Wage Law Upheld in Benning Litigation.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 15.—(AP) The fifth district United States circuit court of appeals today upheld validity of the act empowering the secretary of labor to prescribe wages paid on federal projects in affirming a decision to grant H. H. Webb and 21 other intervenors differences in wages prescribed and actually paid them by M. E. Gillioz and others on construction of a military barracks building at Fort Benning, Ga.

The court reversed and remanded to the south district of Georgia the case of Ethel P. Yarbrough vs. Prudential Insurance Company of America in which the trial court gave a directed verdict against Mrs. Yarbrough on her claim for $10,000 on a policy taken out two days before her husband died.

The defense was that the premium had not been paid, but the appellate court said the phrase "receipt of which premium is hereby acknowledged" in the policy implied the policy was in force since it was not recalled prior to his death.

D. G. Jacobs, a Georgia automobile dealer, lost his appeal to recover $5,988 damages from the Merchants Fire Insurance Corporation of New York. The dealer sued on a written policy after a tornado had damaged his place of business. The defense was that the space opposite that contingency on the policy was not filled in. Both courts held that such contracts must be wholly written and the lower court's order of nonsuit was affirmed.

HOME ECONOMICS TEACHERS ELECT

LaGrange Woman Is Named Chairman of Group.

A two-day conference of home economics teachers from the fourth and fifth congressional districts was concluded here yesterday with the election of Miss Constance Bays, of LaGrange, as permanent chairman.

Miss Elizabeth Mays, state director of vocational home economics, was in charge of the meeting, assisted by Miss Frances Champlain and Miss Elizabeth Barnett. J. T. Dempsey, of the State Department of Education, was guest speaker at the closing session.

It was voted to hold a similar meeting here in the early spring and also to form six study groups to meet regularly for a survey of economic conditions and to make plans for home economic departments.

MRS. EDNA COWGILL TO BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Edna P. Cowgill, nationally known social worker and superintendent of the Florence Crittendon Home in Charlotte, N. C., who died Monday morning in a private hospital here, will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill by the Rev. John Moore Walker. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

A native of Topeka, Kan., Mrs. Cowgill was the daughter of the late Colonel S. S. Prouty, founder and editor of the Topeka Commonwealth. She married the late F. B. Cowgill, and they resided for many years in Canada.

She resided in Atlanta and was connected with the Georgia Children's Home Society until 1925, when she was made superintendent of the Home for Unhappy Mothers. She had gained national fame in social workers' circles.

SCOTTSBORO FIVE DENIED PARDONS

Freedom Hopes Ended for at Least Six Months.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 15.—(UP)—Governor Bibb Graves today ended for at least six months any hopes for freedom for five negroes convicted in the notorious Scottsboro case.

The Governor, approving without comment recommendations of the Alabama pardon board, refused pardons for the five. Possibilities of freedom for the negroes through court action had been exhausted and Alabama law specifies that petitions for clemency cannot be reconsidered within six months after denial—by which time Graves will have been succeeded as Governor by Frank M. Dixon.

Leaders of Georgia Baptist Convention Meeting Here

time he has been elected to this position. Dr. Ragdale is also the historian of the convention. He has published two volumes of his "History of Georgia Baptists," and today that the third volume will go to press at an early date.

Rev. Jack Bridges, of Zebulon, preached the convention sermon, taking as his text, Matthew 18:18. On this rock I will build my church, he declared that "God cannot use an unregenerate church membership in bringing to pass His kingdom."

Hospital Campaign.

A feature of the session was the recommendation by the executive committee of the convention regarding a new building for the Georgia Baptist hospital, located in Atlanta. The recommendation, as adopted, follows:

"An enlargement program to be launched now and continue over a period of five years; that the financial objective be $300,000, and that the hospital commission, with the approval of the executive committee, be authorized to begin the work of improving and enlarging the hospital buildings and facilities as rapidly as funds are secured or guaranteed by good pledges; and that the hospital commission be authorized to secure funds for this program for improvement through appeals to individuals for special gifts."

It is understood that a considerable sum of money has already been given by individuals toward the erection of another building at the hospital and the action of the convention yesterday gave official sanction to the plan.

Dr. Merritt's report revealed that gifts to the co-operative program, which includes the missionary, educational and benevolent work of the convention, increased substantially in the past year. Total assets of $320,456.31 was contributed by Georgia Baptists this year for these causes.

Increase Gifts.

The convention voted to increase its percentage of gifts to south-wide causes from 35-65 to 40-60; that 40 per cent of all missionary, educational and benevolent gifts will go to causes fostered by the Southern Baptist convention and 60 per cent will go to causes within the state. This advance in the percentage of gifts to south-wide causes was hailed as a forward step by the convention.

The convention memorialized the Southern Baptist convention at its meeting in Richmond, Va., last May to hold its centennial session in 1945 in Augusta, Ga., where the convention was organized in 1845. The Southern Baptist convention replied favorably for the appointment of a committee to conference with the Georgia Baptist convention to work out further details looking to this arrangement for the centennial.

The Shorter College board of trustees petitioned the convention, through the executive committee of the convention, to allow Shorter College to submit its proposed list of trustees to the convention for its approval or disapproval, thus linking the college more closely with the convention. Shorter College is chartered under a self-perpetuating board of trustees.

Work for Negroes.

The report of the department of state missions, under the direction of Dr. Merritt, reveals progress in every department of the work of the denomination within the state. Attention was called to the aid which Dr. Merritt's office has been able to give to the work of the negroes during the year. Bible conferences and institutes have been provided throughout the state for negro pastors with more than 2,000 members of that race participating.

The annual church efficiency school, held at Mercer University each June, was described as reaching a larger number of pastors in every department reports a larger number of baptisms this year than for the past several years, and it is believed that when the final December that 1938 will show the ports are compiled at the end of largest number of people coming into the churches on a profession of faith in the history of the convention. An example of the increase in baptisms is found in the Atlanta association, which this year reports 4,238 baptisms as compared with 2,315 for 1937.

Sunday Schooling.

Dr. T. W. Tippet, secretary of the Sunday school department, reports 5,619 awards for teacher training for the first six months of 1938, with indications that total awards for the year will exceed the 10,000 mark, which will be a record for the state. Vacation Bible schools in Georgia this year reached a new high record, both in the number of schools and in the attendance.

Gainer E. Bryan, secretary of the Baptist Training Union department, reports 183 new unions organized during the year, and a total of 11,465 awards for training work. There are now 2,277 organizations of young people in the Baptist churches of Georgia.

Miss Mary Christian, secretary of the Woman's Missionary Union, reports 2,975 organizations of the women and girls in the churches of the state, with a total membership of 42,130 persons. The women report 5,846 titheers, and 29 churches in which every woman made a contribution to missions during the year. Total gifts of the women during the year amounted to $191,698.22. This is the fiftieth anniversary of W. M. U. work in the south.

D. B. Nicholson, secretary of the Baptist Student Union department, reports an enlarged activity of his department, touching practically every college campus of the state. Mr. Nicholson is located at Athens, where he personally directs the student work at the state university. He has associate secretaries in each college center in the state.

Orphan's Home Report. E. C. White, superintendent of the Georgia Baptist Orphan's Home, reports total assets of $482,253.85, with gifts received during the year amounting to $74,233.85, and income from other sources bringing a total receipts to $93,619.81. Nearly 300 boys and girls have been cared for at the home, located at Hapeville, during the past year.

W. D. Barker, superintendent of the Georgia Baptist hospital, reported a total of 5,787 treated during the year, of which number 1,168 were charity cases. The average number of patients in the hospital per day during the year was 147. There were 581 out-patients during the year. Total assets of the hospital are listed at $723,668.81. The free service rendered by the hospital during the year represented a cost to the hospital of $47,957.92.

Dr. Spright Dowell, president of Mercer University, reports an 18 per cent increase in enrollment, with 55 students preparing for the ministry, which is the largest number of ministerial students in several years. Dr. Dowell also reports increase in endowment with several new buildings added to the Mercer equipment.

Bessie Tift Report.

Dr. C. L. McGinty, president of Bessie Tift College, reports a student body of 261 students, with substantial additions in equipment and endowment. Dr. Paul Cousins, president of Shorter College, reports an increase of endowment plans for a physical education building. There was an increase in attendance at Shorter this year. Increased attendance and endowment were reported by President Carroll, of Norman Junior College, and President Gates, of Brewton-Parker Junior College. The educational work of the convention was described as more promising than in several years, both in the number of students in attendance and in equipment and endowment. Plans will be launched in each institution during the year for further endowment funds. The Christian Index, under the management of Dr. O. P. Gilbert, and the Baptist Book Store, under

'I AM DIFFERENT' APPLAUDED HERE

Tallulah Bankhead and Fritz Scheff Warmly Received.

By LEE ROGERS.

In a thoroughly convincing manner, Tallulah Bankhead, with the aid of a capable supporting cast last night proved to the satisfaction of an Erlanger theater audience that a woman in love is a jealous woman despite her contentment "I Am Different."

The stage star, who was reared almost at Atlanta's backdoor—Alabama, was warmly received on her initial appearance last night and more than met expectations as evidenced by numerous curtain calls. Fritz Scheff, star of many a musical comedy success in which theater people call the good old days, was cheered by those in the audience who remembered her. Her role, though small, was handled capably and in a manner bringing laughs and smiles to the audience.

The story concerns the love and life of a woman novelist who claimed to give expert advice to the lovelorn. The writer is Miss Bankhead and her lover is played by John Emery, Miss Bankhead's husband of several years. Glenn Anders is convincing in the role of the retiring husband who sees his wife drifting from him.

Throughout, the novelist attempts to carry on her love affair, under an illusion she cannot be hurt because she will never be jealous. Hain Lindesay, Lou and Margaret Seddon, as "Provincial Penelope"—a client of the lovelorn column—help her prove herself wrong.

People didn't leave the theater raving about "I Am Different," which is heading toward Broadway, but they left last night with a feeling of contentment, that they had been entertained, and after all that is the final test of any performance.

N. Y. TIMES NAMES FINLEY SUCCESSOR

Charles Merz Will Direct Editorial Page.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Arthur Hays Sulzberger, publisher of The New York Times, announced tonight that Charles Merz had been appointed editor of the Times, in charge of the editorial page, to succeed Dr. John H. Finley.

According to a prearranged plan, Dr. Finley, who has returned to the Times after an illness of several months, becomes editor emeritus at the age of 75.

The new editor, 45, has been engaged in journalism 23 years. He was Sulzberger's managing editor of Harper's Weekly, 1915-16; Washington correspondent of the New Republic, 1916-17; assistant to the American commission to negotiate peace, Paris, 1918-19; associate editor of the New Republic, 1920; and state correspondent of The New York Times in Europe and the Orient, 1921-23. Merz went to The Times editorial page staff in 1931.

It was, however, in 1810 that the whiskey was first distilled. The first record of the Overholt family in this country and in Pennsylvania, the first of the Overholts, was in 1730. It is interesting to speculate whether or not the soldier Overholt, either in the French and Indian or Revolutionary wars, was a farmer who was allowed for all his services to the army to supervise the distilling of whiskey. The curious thing about the Overholt family is that they have been in the business of distilling whiskey for over 150 years. The Overholt family has been in the business of distilling whiskey for over 150 years. The Overholt family has been in the business of distilling whiskey for over 150 years.

MY DAY Lazy Afternoon Follows Day of Much Activity

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

CINCINNATI, Ohio.—We left Albany last evening. Not having had time all day to read the papers, we spent some time going through what news one can assimilate from the voluminous metropolitan press. We woke to the sunny Ohio countryside, and the first Ohio paper I looked at, while I waited for breakfast in the diner, carried Dorothy Thompson's column.

I cannot somehow believe that under any circumstances in any country, it can be good for human nature to deal cruelly and oppressively with any group of people. It seems to me to show such a woeful lack of imagination, not to be able to achieve legitimate objectives of orderly government without a procedure which in the end harms most those who carry it out. Dorothy Thompson is right, I think—what is done to people is never so harmful as what people do to.

We were greeted in Cincinnati by the mayor and our lecture sponsors. The press conference was through in record time, and we were driven along the river, over a most beautiful road which WPA labor has just made possible. It is such a sleepy, quiet river, one can hardly imagine that it ever gets out of hand. Today, the sun shining on it and the warm autumn air made it seem particularly placid.

We passed the country club and reached what looked like real country places. At first, no one could find the way to my cousin, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth's house, so we drove around aimlessly. Finally, we found a closed gate, and there before us was the old house built in 1848. There are still extensive grounds around it and Iaulina, who is apparently a born horsewoman and loves animals, showed us a Jerusalem donkey, her own horse, and a fat little pony whose usefulness is long past. These animals wander around the grounds entirely free, so that the closed gate really had a reason back of it.

I judge the inside of the house has not been changed since the eighties. There are many good pieces of furniture of that period, and the woodwork is beautifully carved. It is a comfortable house, and now it has been made bright and livable with light walls and chintzes. I am sure there was a period when dark reds and greens predominated, and then it must have been very gloomy, but that is no longer the case.

Open fires burned in every room and though the period of the eighties is not at present our ideal of architectural beauty, still we must acknowledge that it had quality and real comfort, and I enjoyed the house very much. I always enjoy my cousin, for while we may laugh at each other and quarrel with each other's ideas or beliefs, I rather imagine if real trouble came that we might be good allies. Fundamental Roosevelt characteristics gravitate toward each other in times of stress. Now we are back at the hotel, and there is apparently no clamor for me to visit anything, so I shall have a lazy afternoon.

TODAY'S CHARM TIP

"My special Charm Tip," writes A Victim, "is to beg people to refrain from telling folk out of a job or otherwise troubled to 'Keep your chin up.' It's the straw that breaks one down completely."

Here's a Cautious Overcall

By Harold Sharpsteen.

This is the third in a series of exclusive articles, authorized by Randall B. Terry, North Carolina newspaper publisher, exposing the tricks of a trio of card swindlers.

Eight out of ten bridge players, under similar circumstances, would probably oblige by sky-rocketing immediately to game, holding:

S-A-K-Q-J-10-7-3
H-K-Q-J
D-K-Q
C-9

Publisher Terry was on the verge of bidding four spades on the hand, playing in a high-stake game with three men of short acquaintance aboard a liner bound for South America. But, if it was all that simple, this story would not be worth relating.

BIDS ONE SPADE. When South opened the bidding one club, Publisher Terry, who still wonders what restrained him, mildly overcalled one spade! North passed. East, Publisher Terry's partner, passed.

But South, the opening bidder, rebid one notrump. Now what should Publisher Terry have done?

With neither side vulnerable, South had opened the bidding one club. Publisher Terry sitting West had overcalled one spade. Now South, as North and East passed, was bidding one notrump. Terry doubled one notrump! North and East obliged by passing throughout the remainder of the auction. But South re-doubled his medical missionary work. Dr. Edward E. Hume, formerly of China, has been elected director. Headquarters are to be in the Presbyterian building, New York.

Barbara Bell's Boudoir Gift Set

Do You Have a Vitamin B Complex?

By Dr. William Brady.

Some lay magazine had a story about the tremendous growth of plants which may be induced by digging a little vitamin B in the soil. Another news story tells of remarkable cures of the douloureux or trigeminal facial neuralgia (than which few other pains are more intense) by large doses of vitamin B. One factor in the vitamin B complex is designated as the anti-gray hair factor (referring to its assumed effect in retarding graying of the hair of animals.) Whether it has any effect of that kind in man I do not know. Occasionally some one who has been taking vitamin B writes to tell me that he or she believes it is restoring the original color to gray hair. That's all I know, except that I can assure anybody disposed to experiment with vitamin B or vitamin B complex that no matter how much one takes it can do no harm. I may go further and say that a few months of supplementary feeding with vitamin B or vitamin B complex is likely to bring distinct improvement in the health of the average individual, since a large portion of the population probably suffers from moderate deficiency in the intake of vitamin B.

There is a good deal yet to learn about the vitamin B complex. At present we know that the complex, that is, the vitamin B as it grows in such foods as wheat, rice, oats, various vegetables and fruits, includes a dozen or more entities or factors, some of which have been isolated, others having been assumed from scientific animal experiments.

Vitamin B-1 is chemically identified as thiamin, and has been synthesized or artificially produced. It is this factor which prevents or cures beriberi, multiple neuritis, so-called alcoholic neuritis or paralysis, polyneuritis and pathological vomiting of pregnancy. Vitamin B-2 is chemically identified as riboflavin or vitamin G, and is sometimes called the anti-dermatitis factor. Whether vitamin G is the main factor whose deficiency or lack is responsible for pellagra is as yet unsettled. Deficiency of vitamin G (riboflavin, B-2) in the diet of animals is recognized as a cause of an unhealthy state of the skin and premature onset of senility or shortening of the prime of life. Other factors in the vitamin B complex probably prevent loss of weight or help to increase body weight, prevent loss of appetite, promote growth or prevent retardation in growth, aid or are necessary for normal metabolism of carbohydrate and in maintaining tone in the stomach and intestine, vigor in the heart muscle.

Rich sources of vitamin B, complex (all of the factors) are wheat germ, dried pasteurized (non-fermenting) brewers yeast—yeast suitable for baking is relatively poor in vitamins—rice polishings, wheat bran.

When there are so many new shades of make-up—to match or complement the so-many new shades in the feminine wardrobe—of course it's hard for you to know just what is right for each and every one. But with the aid of the cosmetics which are my job and pleasure to try help you.

So far as lipstick is concerned, it's easy.

a fashion designer, has the grandest way of presenting his new lipsticks and matching rouges. The lipstick, by the way, is sealed in cellophane, so that neither you nor the saleslady can try its color on your hand or hers, in the unsanitary manner I've often seen.

That isn't necessary, for in the neat little box with the lipstick, there are three tester compartments containing generous amounts of three shades of the lovely blue-red tint to complement all the lovely shades of blue, in such variations that all types of women can successfully find the exact shade for them and their costumes.

Of course rouge and lipsticks come in matching shades, and the rouge is presented in a smooth, slim and elegant case—very flat—and it tucks nicely into your bag, yet holds a generous amount of rouge with an honest-to-goodness-sized fluffy puff. The case—a perfect jewel—comes in either black or white enamel paneling and refills are obtainable.

Not only that, but the same manufacturer has just put on the market companion compacts to the rouge, containing cake powder in all the lovely shades. You'll get quite a kick out of pulling one or both of these compacts, and yes, the lipstick also, out of your bag when you are dressed just right.

They add the final finishing touch to any costume.

If you are interested—and of course you are—phone me for the names of these products and the Atlanta stores at which they may be purchased. The price is much less than you would imagine. If you do not live in the city, write me, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

A Little House With a Fine View

By Elizabeth Boykin.

"We've just built a little house on the top of a hill," writes Mrs. G., "and our most treasured possession is a priceless view from the windows in the dining end of the living room. How can I dramatize this? The views from the other windows are very fine, too.

"My furniture includes an upright piano, a love seat, a lounge chair, an end table, six Queen Anne chairs with blue-green repp seats, a lowboy, a Chippendale mirror, a Molly Pitcher gate leg table, all in mahogany. The living room is to the left of the front hall and staircase. It has a fireplace in the north wall between two windows."

WAXED OAK FLOORS. "What finish would you suggest for walls, woodwork and mantel? What sort of rug should I have for the waxed oak floors? I'd like a barrel chair and a coffee table now—perhaps other things later.

"What would be the most practical use of the room to the right of the hall—as a den with a studio couch or as a real guest room?"

"My 10-year-old daughter would like to paint the wash scene from Snow White above the tile in the downstairs washroom. Do you think that would be all right?"

THE ANSWER. The best way to dramatize fine views is by keeping the curtaining of the windows extremely simple, and the entire room very tranquil in design. I'd have straight hanging curtains made to draw completely to the sides (you can use either transverse rods or just rings that swish easily back).

If you want to dispense with shades or blinds, make these curtains of a chintz with lining and weights. If you have Venetian blinds or shades, you could just use a sheer material hung to the floor. In either case I'd like to see a valance to finish off the top of the window. What would you think of a soft robin's egg blue for the walls? With white woodwork and white mantel, then plain yellow curtains. Get a soft toned floral chintz to use for slip covers on the love seat and lounge chair. Have the barrel chair in gold and use a plain gray rug, with white and gold accessories.

FROM SNOW WHITE. I imagine that you'd get more use out of the extra room if you make a den-sitting room out of it. And I think it would be just charming to let your little girl decorate the washroom with Snow White scenes!

In Spite of Housework You Still Need Exercise

If housework were exercises we would all be streamlined. The trouble is that housework makes you tired instead of beautiful, and something has to be done about it.

When you analyze your household tasks you can see that they divide themselves into two groups; those that use the small muscles, and those that use the large muscles. Now, we know that the greatest exchange of energy takes place in the muscles, and it follows that the tasks which use the large muscles are the most reducing. It has been proven that even a moderate use of these large muscles easily involves a greater expenditure of energy than the most intense use of the smaller muscles.

From all this, there is only one conclusion to be drawn—the smart housewife saves herself as much as possible on the tedious and tiring tasks so that she has the energy left over only for the exercise that keeps the figure slim, but also for the activity that stimulates the circulation and promotes health.

None of the tasks using the small muscles, however tiring they may be, are of the slightest value as exercise. Washing dishes three times a day uses the small muscles only. Ironing uses the small muscles to a greater extent and leaves you feeling fatigued, but you can cut down the effort required for both by sitting on a stool at the sink or ironing board. Also, it is very important that ironing boards, tables, sinks and tubs be the right height for you. You should not have to stoop over your work.

Since the housewife does have to stand a good part of the time, the best shoes—not loose fitting bedroom slippers or broken down shoes that do not support the arches—should be worn. It pays any housewife to invest in a pair of comfortable shoes with heels that are right. Ill-fitting shoes cause fatigue and wrinkles.

Another fatigue and wrinkle chaser is the plan of taking 10 to 15 minutes to lie down before you are worn to a frazzle. And when you have been on your feet quite a bit, lie with them propped higher than the head.

Some housework does use the trunk muscles and you can get exercise out of it. In hanging clothes on a line, the upward stretching to reach a line that is a bit high exercises some of the muscles. Bedmaking can involve bending from the waist, with the tummy held up, and it helps to slim you down. Any work constitutes some exercise as long as you hold your figure in proper alignment.

No matter how you look at it, however, housework is not exercise. You might work hard all day and still not benefit as much as from a 15-minute workout with exercises for the muscles of the abdomen, waist, hips and chest. In addition you need the invigorating effects of a straightaway walk. You should step out briskly and walk for at least 30 minutes. Your figure and health will benefit from such a program and you must plan your day so that you are not too tired to carry it out.

Atlanta's Social Clubs Plan Gala Festivities for Thanksgiving

Harvest Motif To Predominate In Decorations at Dinner-Dances

By Sally Forth.

GALA dinner-dances are being planned by Atlanta's numerous clubs and hotels to herald the arrival of Thanksgiving.

The turkey, the golden hay stack and the pumpkin will "come into their own" in the harvest motif which will predominate in the decorations to be featured at each function.

That exclusive organization, the Nine O'Clocks, will "break away" from the conventional Thanksgiving motif when members entertain at the Piedmont Driving Club on November 23.

The party will be in the nature of a seaside affair, and guests have been requested to appear in beach togs, play suits and sports clothes. Clever invitations have been issued to this effect.

A Florida setting will be achieved by the use of palm trees, tropical foliage and awning-topped tables. Centering the ballroom will be a picturesque beach and ocean view reflecting the romantic atmosphere of the tropics.

East Lake Country Club will withhold its Thanksgiving dinner-dance until the Saturday after Thanksgiving Day. At that time, however, the ballroom will be beautified with an attractive harvest motif.

Formal invitations have been issued to the dinner-dance to be given by the Standard Club on Thanksgiving Eve. This dance will open the club's formal winter season, and will be followed by two brilliant parties to be given after the new year.

Ingenuity has been shown in the novel invitations sent out by Druid Hills Golf Club to its Thanksgiving Eve dinner-dance.

Forming a background for the lettered announcement on the invitation is a realistic etching of a proudly strutting turkey.

The Capital City Club will not make a specialty of Thanksgiving, but will hold its nightly dinner-dance in the grill room.

A party anticipated by members of society's younger set is that at which Raiford Ragsdale will be hostess on Thanksgiving Eve.

The affair will take place at Margaret Bryan's studio, and will feature decorations suggestive of the autumnal motif.

Among the parties galore planned for Thanksgiving Day is the cocktail party at which Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Smith and their sister, Judy King, will entertain at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The occasion will follow the Tech-Georgia freshman football game to be played at Grant Field, and will assemble 500 members of Atlanta's social set.

SALLY has learned with interest of the vacation now being enjoyed by Colonel and Mrs. Benjamin Mart Bailey, of Fort Sam Houston, Texas.

Colonel and Mrs. Bailey will attend the Princeton-Army football game to be played in Princeton, N. J. Their son, Cadet Benjamin Mart Bailey Jr., as you know, plays end on the Army team and has participated in every Army gridiron conflict this season. His parents, however, will see him play for the first time at Saturday's game.

On November 26 the Baileys will attend the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, when Mart will again take an active part in the pigskin battle.

At present the well-known couple is sojourning in New York city, but the visit is only temporary, for, on November 19, Colonel and Mrs. Bailey will attend the Princeton-Army football game to be played in Princeton, N. J. Their son, Cadet Benjamin Mart Bailey Jr., as you know, plays end on the Army team and has participated in every Army gridiron conflict this season. Benefit Bridge.

Members and friends of Boulevard Park Woman's Club are invited to attend a benefit bridge party sponsored by the club this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the fourth floor of Kline's department store on Broad street. Mrs. Harry Dulaney is chairman of the party and those desiring reservations may phone Mrs. Dulaney at Vernon 3909, or Mrs. W. L. Thomason, club president, at Vernon 2001.

Mrs. Dulaney reports attractive prizes to be awarded players. Funds realized will be used to further the civic, welfare, educational and other activities of Boulevard Park Woman's Club.

"etiquette-conscious." She planned a luncheon, but before any of the details were executed, she bought the latest book, dealing with such subjects as "what a hostess should know," "how to address invitations," "how to seat the guests" and many other subjects which she studied thoroughly.

She carefully planned the correct timing for the arrival of the invitations issued to her guests. The important day for mailing them arrived. The matron, confident of her success, in the preparation of her party, stamped and sealed the invitations.

Her young son was given the honor of mailing the notes. Young boys, however, have a way of forgetting to mail letters. When the awful truth dawned upon him, he was in Decatur. He dashed to the post office there and mailed the invites. As the last one slipped into Uncle Sam's box, he sighed with relief, for his mother would still be "correct."

Imagine the matron's surprise when the next day she was notified by post office authority that each envelope was being held for one cent postage, as three cents is required on letters mailed in Decatur to be delivered in Atlanta. Thus the invitations so carefully timed for arrival according to the etiquette book were two days late!

LISTED among Atlanta's important November visitors is Mrs. William Warren, of New Orleans, who is visiting her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Ragan, here.

Mrs. Warren, as you know, is a sister of the late Mrs. Willis Ragan, of this city, and of the late Mrs. L. R. McConico, of New Orleans.

Mrs. Warren is the former Miss Lena Jackson and, with her sister, Mrs. McConico, the former Miss Dell Jackson, visited Mrs. Willis Ragan here frequently during her young ladyhood. Before her marriage, Mrs. Ragan was Miss Anna Jackson.

The Jackson sisters were considered among New Orleans belles and ladies before they joined married ranks, and their parents' home on fashionable St. Charles avenue provided the setting for some of the most brilliant social functions ever given in the Crescent City.

Mrs. Warren, by the way, continues to live in the ancestral Jackson home, where she dispenses the gracious hospitality for which her family has been noted for generations.

There will also be a tight-rope walker, a seal from an unknown island in the Pacific, an elephant, a horse with music coming from its insides, a wild man from Borneo, clowns, and a giant on stilts. Two years ago Pittman was defeated by R. C. McFarland, who died before being sworn in. Former Governor Eugene Talmadge appointed Judge William Ingram, of Cartersville, to the post but Pittman refused to step down. The state supreme court then held that Pittman could retain the seat until the 1938 general election.

Judge Mitchell, who actually is serving an unexpired term, will hold the place until December 31, 1940.

MAJORITY OF VOTERS SUPPORTING F. D. R.

Chief Executive's Popularity Exceeds That of Party in Survey.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Despite important Republican gains in the national elections, President Roosevelt is approved by a majority of voters throughout the nation and continues to be more popular than the Democratic party itself.

The President's popularity was measured by a scientific Institute survey just before the election—a survey conducted along exactly the same methods as those used in forecasting the election results.

This study showed 54.4 per cent of the majority party voters are for Roosevelt, 45.6 per cent against him.

The party's strength on the other hand, as revealed in total popular vote for Democratic contest last week, is estimated at 52.6 per cent, or 1.8 per cent under the President's strength.

Since President Roosevelt took office there has been a close correlation between his popularity and strength of his party. The two figures have varied by margins of 2 to 3.5 per cent, as the following table shows:

Major Party Popular Vote For Dem. For Rep. Difference

1932 57% 59% 2%

1934 57% 59% 2%

1936 52.6 54.4 1.8

Today 52.6 54.4 1.8

"Institute survey."

Politically-minded statisticians have looked to the November 8 election figures as an important check-up on the various measurements of President Roosevelt's popularity today. Judging by the close correlation between the Institute's figure for Roosevelt's strength before the election and the election result itself, the accuracy of the Institute's presidential barometer appears to have been confirmed.

The basic meaning of the figure 54.4 per cent for Roosevelt's popularity is that he enters his last two years with fairly good-sized majority of voters supporting him.

As a matter of fact the President's popularity is higher today than it has been at several points in the last four years.

For example, Institute studies found him at only 52 per cent directly after Landon was nominated in 1936. In the autumn of 1935, after a long and bitter session of congress, the figure was as low as 50.5 per cent.

And the surveys recently after he captured public imagination by his acts.

His peace appeal to Hitler and Chamberlain, for instance brought about a sharp rise in his popularity. If the pattern of other years is repeated, the curve may again turn upwards, depending on the march of events.

MITCHELL ASSUMES JUDGESHIP DUTIES

Pittman Steps Down, Thus Apparently Ending Long Dispute Over Post.

DALTON, Ga., Nov. 15.—(AP)—John C. Mitchell, former solicitor general of the Cherokee circuit, took his seat on the superior court bench here today to bring an apparent end to a two-year controversy over the judgeship.

Mitchell's right to the office was contested by Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Cartersville, who declared he should hold the post until January 1, 1939. Mitchell was elected in the general election last week and received his commission from Governor Rivers Monday night.

As his first official act Judge Mitchell appointed Gene Holcomb as court reporter for the circuit. Holcomb, once secretary to former Congressman John Wood, succeeds Arthur Wallace.

Judge Mitchell also removed Louis Crawford from the board of registrars of Whitefield county. No successor was named. Crawford formerly was United States marshal for the northern district of Georgia.

In taking his seat today Judge Mitchell had the backing of the state law department, which noted that Pittman was entitled to the office only until the judgeship was decided in the general election.

Two years ago Pittman was defeated by R. C. McFarland, who died before being sworn in. Former Governor Eugene Talmadge appointed Judge William Ingram, of Cartersville, to the post but Pittman refused to step down. The state supreme court then held that Pittman could retain the seat until the 1938 general election.

Judge Mitchell, who actually is serving an unexpired term, will hold the place until December 31, 1940.

TARZAN AND THE ELEPHANT MEN No. 27

How easy it would be to kill Spike, thought Troll. But he was afraid of the man, even when he slept. He could not muster the courage—yet. Later, he'd do it. But now his mind was on Gona. Troll crawled cautiously through the doorway of the hut.

As he rose to his feet, he stumbled over a cooking-pot. The noise, against the background of silence, seemed terrific. Troll halted, listening. Spike moved and turned over, but he did not awaken. Troll heard nothing, so he crept on warily toward Gona's hut.

The girl, aroused by the noise, lay staring wide-eyed into the lesser darkness framed by the doorway. She heard footsteps. Would they pass, or were they coming for her? Days of danger, days of suspicion, had made her sense menace in every event.

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Raising herself on her hands, she crouched, waiting. Suddenly a dark blotch loomed in the doorway. "Who are you?" Gona demanded. "Shut up! Don't make no noise!" The girl recognized that gruff, harsh voice, and she trembled with a new fear.

New Jersey Court Rules on State's System.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—(P)—The United States circuit court of appeals ruled today that eight eastern railroads must pay the state of New Jersey more than $50,000,000 in additional taxes on their properties.

The court upheld the New Jersey system of taxing railroad properties which the rail companies had opposed as unjust and discriminatory.

The railroads contended they were assessed on a basis of 100 per cent of their cost, or replacement value, whereas as other property is taxed on a basis of 30 to 60 per cent of actual value.

MORGAN INTERESTS ABANDONS 'DREAM'

Eliminate United Corporation as Holding Company.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—(P)—The dream of the Morgan-Bonbright banking interests of creating United Corporation as a super-holding company to control their vast investments in public utility systems—conceived back in the flush days of 1929—was dissolved today.

In a letter signed by George H. Howard, its president, United Corporation notified the Securities and Exchange Commission it would eliminate itself as a holding company as defined by the 1933 "death sentence" legislation by reducing its investments in four large utility operating systems to below the 10 per cent limit which the legislation labels as evidence of control.
